

Presidential Losers Arrested

SAIGON (UPI) — Police Friday arrested two defeated civilian presidential candidates on their way to the national assembly to fight for the invalidation of voting that elected Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu president. (See also Pages 2, 5.)

The two men were runner-up Truong Dinh Du and Vu Hong Khanh.

Khanh was released a short time later, but Du was held.

Earlier this month Du was sentenced to nine months in prison and fined about $10,000 on charges of writing bad checks and sending money out of the country illegally to a bank account in San Francisco.

Coup Trio Shot

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia has executed the first batch of officers who led an attempted Communist coup, almost exactly two years after the upheaval which plunged the nation into a bloodbath. It was learned Thursday.

LT-Col. Untung, former battalion commander in deposed president Sukarno's palace guard, was executed by firing squad Wednesday in a military prison near the West Java capital of Bandung, informed sources said. He was accused of setting off the uprising.

TWO OTHERS

Two other officers also shot were former air force Maj. Sujono and former Lieut. Ngadimo Hadisuwignjo.

The three were sentenced to death by a special military court in 1965.

Untung was the man who sent out raiding parties with the mission of kidnapping six top generals on Oct. 1, 1965, the morning of the coup attempt.

FOUND DEAD

The generals, now regarded as martyrs, were found dead at the foot of an abandoned well near Halim air base, just outside Jakarta.

Public outrage over their killing spurred Suharto and other military leaders into immediate action to crush the coup and wipe out the Indonesian Communist party.

It led to the army takeover in 1966 and Sukarno's final downfall early this year.

Holding grandchild, Mrs. Timbrell pleads with policeman

Tears and Punches Mark Foster Move

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — A wild melee of screaming, punching and sobbing broke out Thursday when police arrived to retrieve two little girls from Mrs. Arthur Timbrell, their foster mother.

Amid the uproar on a quiet residential street that started with police and neighbors, the children, Valerie, 3, and Peggy, 5, were taken away to new foster homes. Mrs. Timbrell was later charged with abduction and released on her own recognizance to appear Tuesday in magistrate's court.

Police Chief Arthur Woods of Preston and his men, as well as officials of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society, were pummeled by the angry Timbrell family. Ruth Connolly, a psychologist, was grabbed by the hair and thrown to the ground. J. W. Donnaschle, assistant director of the Galt branch of the society, had his glasses ripped off his face and was punched, kicked and scratched.

But nobody was hurt seriously.

Wayne Timbrell, the 21-year-old son, had to be forcibly subdued by three policemen after a shouting match between him and the officers became a shoving match. Handcuffed and hauled away in a police cruiser, he was later released.

Mrs. Timbrell, 43, a mother of nine, has refused since August to return the two little sisters after the society announced it had found separate homes for them. She vowed to go to jail rather than let the children go.

Police and society officials arrived at the Timbrell home about 2 p.m. armed with a warrant. Chief Woods read the warrant to Mrs. Timbrell at her front door, authorizing a search "by force if necessary." But the mother refused to unlock the door.

They left without trying to enforce the warrant. A short time later, Chief Woods arrived with a warrant for Mrs. Timbrell's arrest. As a chorus of cries and wails erupted from the family members, Mrs. Timbrell put on her coat, and said she would have to take the children with her.

Mrs. Timbrell and the children climbed into the police car without a struggle, but shouting all the time: "You can't take our sisters away from us."

When Mrs. Connolly appeared at the car to remove Valerie, the Timbrells jumped out and the melee broke out. Continued on Page 2

'What Price Equalization'

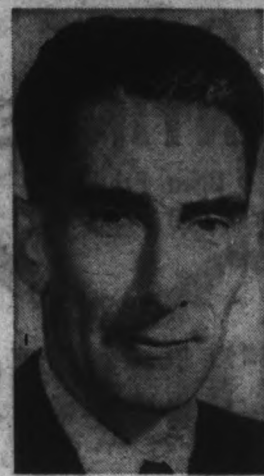

Quebec Owes Clarification

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Quebec owes the rest of Canada an early indication of whether it intends to remain in Confederation, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Thursday.

"The leaders of Quebec should let us have some indication soon on where the people of Quebec stand on this," Kiernan said. "Certainly the rest of Canada should not be expected to subsidize the nation's disintegration."

He added: "In other words we are providing hundreds of millions of dollars annually in equalization payments. We would like to be confident that it is a good cause. That's my personal opinion."

Kiernan

Kiernan said in an interview he was confident by the present situation in Quebec. "But I would like to believe that it is a tempest in a teapot, and that we can reserve the right to argue vigorously about Confederation, to strengthen it and to keep it."

Trade Minister Ralph Lofmark said he was severely criticized three years ago for suggesting that policies of the Pearson Liberal government were leading to the breakup of Confederation.

"What I said at the time seems to be borne out — I have not seen any change in federal policy in the interval," said Lofmark.

Tide Reaching Canada: Loffmark

Climbing Interest Will Rise Higher

Prospective home-buyers in Canada haven't seen the last of climbing interest rates on National Housing Act loans, Industrial Development Minister Loffmark said Thursday.

"It's going to get worse," Loffmark said. "If you think 8 per cent is bad, wait until it gets to 9 per cent."

"I say this because Canada and the U.S. have been an island of low interest rates in a great ocean of high-cost money, and this tide of world high interest rates is beginning to rise in North America. We are only following the world trend." (See also Pages 5, 34.)

DEFICIT FINANCING

However, Loffmark added, high interest rates are also a secondary reflection of deficit financing.

Unless the provinces, and even more the federal government, are prepared to control borrowing as a curb on inflation, the minister said, legal limits on borrowing should be established.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Strachan issued a statement saying the new interest rate boost on NHA loans to 8 1/2 per cent would aggravate a national housing problem that is reaching crisis proportions.

'NO PROUD LABEL'

"We have known for some years," he said, "that the NHA was not meeting the housing needs of our people. NHA standards have been deteriorating and the NHA label is no longer the proud label of a well-built house."

"Now its financial charges put it right out of the picture, and this calls for some completely new scheme of government participation in the housing field. But there are aspects of this increase in interest rates that go far beyond housing. This increase means the Liberal government is accepting inflation as a way of life."

"Inflation will destroy the worth of the savings of our senior citizens and rob the workers of their pay cheques."

Radiologists Open Clinics

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec radiologists Thursday reopened their private offices and clinics, closed since Sept. 20, to give them more time to staff a radiology emergency service for hospitals.

A note of optimism in the seven-week dispute between the radiologists and the government is an offer from the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons to try to seek mediators acceptable to both sides.

TORY PINS TORIES

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP planned his former government to the wall Thursday night with a verbal javelin aimed at the Liberals during a Commons debate on housing.

Howard Graffey (PC-Brome Missisquoi) said the government is engaged in research that should have been done five years ago.

LIBERALS, WHO HAVE HAD FEW BRIGHT MOMENTS IN THE DEBATE, CHUCKLED.

It then dawned on Graffey that a Conservative government was in office in 1962.

It wasn't the only farcical moment in the debate.

Unrestrained laughter greeted Labor Minister Nicholson's assertion that housing starts are running ahead of requirements.

The opposition replied that any MP who has spent any time in his riding knows there are serious shortages.

Nicholson was accused by Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) of spending all his time in his office, and Graffey of travelling all over the country.

Housing Starts Tumble

Nicholson Sees Inflow of Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Allowing private lenders to charge the maximum NHA interest rate of 8 1/2 per cent should assure a substantial upswing of funds for housing, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday.

"Make no mistake, the new interest rate is a realistic one," he said, defending the increase he announced Wednesday night.

It will come into effect Sunday. The present NHA rate is 7 1/2 per cent. (See also Page 8.)

HEAVY PRESSURE

"We have been under heavy pressure for the last year to free the rate entirely," the labor minister said at the outset of a housing debate forced by the opposition.

Vehicle for the debate is the departmental spending estimates under Nicholson's responsibility, including those of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

CMHC reported earlier Thursday the rate of new housing construction in August fell on a seasonally-adjusted annual basis to 146,300 from the July rate of 151,000.

The Economic Council of Canada has said 180,000 new starts are needed each year, rising to 200,000 by 1970, to catch up and meet new needs.

Nicholson's 35-minute speech was met at one point by unrestrained laughter as he said starts this year will exceed the economic council's figure.

WONT HAPPEN

He said new starts in 1967 will exceed 150,000 and the council had said 140,000 would take care of new family growth. It was talking about replacement of old housing for the balance, he said.

Failure to meet the council's target for the balance of the 1960s would put the country in "a difficult position" and he assured MPs the government had no intention of allowing this to happen.

He expected a federal-provincial conference on housing early in 1968 or sooner and said one should have been held this fall but three provincial elections made it impossible.

Nicholson noted the council suggested that steps be taken to free housing construction

Montreal Students Jeer Cong Visitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Vietnamese who say they are members of the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam were widely booed, hissed and hooted on Thursday by an audience of about 750 Sir George Williams University students.

Frequently interrupted by shouts and vehement insults, Ly Van Sau denounced what he called American destruction of the small Asian nation and spoke of American atrocities he said were committed in Vietnam.

The Vietnamese said they belong to a student union of the NLF.

The Sir George Williams students loudly booed and hissed "insults" at the Vietnamese during the entire speech. Some students had an effigy, a black pyjama-clad dummy that had a cardboard head painted with a red hammer and sickle.

Sir George is an English-language university.

Sau, Mrs. Nguyen Ngoc Eung and Le Mai arrived in Montreal Wednesday for a two-week tour of Quebec during which they will talk to students about the war. The visit is sponsored by l'Union generale des etudiants du Quebec.

In an emotion-charged speech punctuated by student cries of "You filthy pig" and "Kill a Commie," Sau spoke of the long, unhappy history of Vietnam and said the Vietnamese people have been struggling for 100 years to push invaders from their land.

One student frantically waved an American flag as other screamed "America's always right" and "All the way with LBJ."

Patiently waiting until the boos would fade, Sau was near tears and at one point his voice quavered. He displayed part of a "lazy dog" or fragmentation bomb, and said Vietnamese children were killed and maimed by napalm.

"We only want peace and the right to determine our own fate and our own country," said Sau as he was drowned out by boos and hisses.

Some of the students cheered in support of the Vietnamese, however, and one of them held up a small red book of quotations from Mao Tse-tung.

Reminding the audience of the bloody defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, Sau said he was confident the Americans would be defeated.

The three Vietnamese declined to talk to reporters following the tumultuous meeting. Outside the hall Sau shook his head slightly, smiled and said: "After all, Jesus Christ was in a minority too."

U.S. Denies Asking About Viet Guests

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States embassy spokesman said here Thursday his government has not made any inquiries about the visit to Montreal of three visitors from South Vietnam.

He said information about the three members of the National Liberation Front had been volunteered by the Canadian government.

Questions about the three men popped up in the Commons Thursday when Conservative House Leader Michael Starr asked Prime Minister Pearson whether the U.S. government asked Canada for information on them.

Pearson, who referred to the visitors as "so-called students," said:

"Subject to further examination, I think we received a query from the U.S. government as to any information that we may have about the nature and purpose of this visit."

"But I would like to look into the nature of the query, if any."

Pearson said the trio travelled on valid North Vietnamese passports, which are honored by Canada just as Canadian passports are honored by the North Vietnamese government.

He said the government does not know the purpose of the visit but it did not seem "possible or desirable" to refuse visas under the circumstances.

Pearson added that he used the expression "so-called students" because one was reported to be 40 "and that seems a little old to go to university."

GIFTS GALORE: The Danish royal couple handed out a few gifts as you may recall from yesterday but the City of Victoria also got into the act in a thoughtful way.

A call went out to the Danish community seeking a youngster of Danish extraction to present flowers to Princess Margrethe at city hall.

Doreen Norgaard, 11, of 2631 Millstream, was chosen, and handed over the bouquet with a blush and a curtsy.

The city marked the occasion for Doreen by presenting her with a silver bracelet. It carries Princess Margrethe's name and the date of Doreen's big moment.

In the excitement of the occasion, the Norgaard family forgot to get the name of the photographer who recorded the event so grandma back in Copenhagen is upset she is not getting a picture.

Perhaps the photographer remembers the little girl?

BIG SURF: Fans will tell you surfing is the greatest sport in the world. Now this international craze has hit Victoria. A club was started just two weeks ago and already there are a dozen members who have signed up in the water every day at Jordan River.

The West Coast Surfing Association, as it is called, has a clubhouse at Jordan River where members can change into diving suits. These are needed because of the chill in the waters here.

Prime movers in the club are an English couple, Alastair and Margaret Fraser, who got the bug while on holiday in the Channel Isles.

COINCIDENCE: The Variety Club threw a bash Monday aboard the yacht Xanadu, tied up in the Inner Harbor, to publicize the coming annual charity telethon from the Queen Elizabeth Playhouse in Vancouver.

The 17-hour show, Oct. 7 and 8, will be seen on local television. Press coverage was expected from all media but not a single local radio station was represented.

Stars this year include Barry Morse, Rudolph Boyce and probably Louis Armstrong.

A BEST SELLER: For a new party game, why not try a round of suggesting unlikely book titles? Here's one: Japan and Saskatchewan.

It's put out by the Canada-Japan Trade Council, which will supply copies on request.

MINI-THOUGHT: It takes a pretty small man to hide behind his wife's skirt — especially nowadays.

Cervical Ribs Can Hurt

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate an explanation of cervical ribs that cause pain in the shoulder and neck area. My age is 73 and I have had X-rays. Would you approve an operation, as has been suggested? — Mrs. S.M.

There are seven cervical vertebrae which, as a group, constitute the neck bones. They have small protrusions at the side.

If one of them (usually the seventh or lowest vertebra of the neck) has a protrusion which is excessively long it is called a cervical rib. (The first regular ribs start with the vertebra directly below the seventh.)

A cervical rib can put pressure on certain nerve roots and thus cause pain in the shoulder, neck or arm. In certain positions it may put pressure on one of the larger arteries in the area.

Why, if this "rib" has been there for a long time, didn't it cause trouble sooner? Because, as we grow older we change shape, and the pressure comes at a different point. Or, there are enough arthritic changes in the bones to contribute to the same thing.

Sometimes a cervical rib can be felt by a physician, but the condition is verified by X-ray. Surgery to remove this elongated portion of the bone is the only cure.

This does not mean that a cervical rib is the only cause of similar distress. Arthritic changes alone may be responsible, or some fault in posture, or injury.

Pains of arm, shoulder or neck can come from varied causes — but whatever is causing pressure on the nerve root can cause pain. Thus the pain (or numbness or tingling) does not by itself indicate the precise cause of the trouble, and does not give the complete diagnosis.

But the correct diagnosis is necessary before you can arrive at the correct treatment.

This brings me to a related point but I will wait until tomorrow to discuss it.

from the effects of cyclical economic action.

"But they don't make any suggestion as to how this should be done," he said. "I think it's their job and their responsibility to say how it should be done."

Only in a completely-controlled economy could cyclical action be averted, he said. In Canada's capitalistic economy, "we must strike a balance."

Shortage of mortgage funds was only one factor in a serious situation. Even if the money for housing was there, it would be "far beyond" the ability of municipalities to provide ancillary services.

LASTING PROBLEM

Canada had a serious housing problem and was likely to have it for some years to come. No country could experience such rapid urban growth and not have this problem, he said.

His suggestion that it is a big-city problem not indicative of the situation in the majority of cities and towns was met by jeers.

He said the federal government will put $900,000,000 into the housing area in 1967, triple the amount being spent when it took office in 1965.

FIGURE DOUBLED

More than $500,000,000—double the 1966 figure—had been allocated to the end of August for new homes and rental housing.

Nicholson said this is a rate that can't be continued indefinitely.

In the last 31 months, public housing units numbered 16,000 compared with 11,600 in the previous 15 years.

Vast amounts were needed in the area of public housing and for housing the aged, students and so on.

PRIVATE MONEY

The government, meanwhile, had taken steps to draw more private money into housing mortgages.

Chartered banks, freed of the usury-interest limitation, now were investing at the rate of $10,000,000 monthly in this field.

The new 8 1/2 per cent maximum would probably draw more money from the banks, he said.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said the economic council's report vindicates the opposition stand, tears to shreds the government's position and "makes clear that in Ottawa there is no housing policy at all."

BANK OF CANADA

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Chapleau) urged the government to cut taxes on building materials and to use the Bank of Canada to provide low-interest funds for housing.

"Give the governor of the Bank of Canada the order and credit will be created as fast as the houses we need."

George Hees (PC—Northumberland) said the government should follow the lead of the U.S. and go to financial houses to ask them to put large amounts of money in the mortgage field. He said President Johnson's appeal had resulted in the insurance companies in the U.S. placing $1,000,000,000 in mortgages.

NOT JUST MONEY

Revenue Minister Benson said the housing problem is not simply a money one.

He cited the supply and use of land and the effects of taxation as influences "which make houses and apartments cost too much."

The government had put $500,000,000 into housing in 1967 because of large cash balances on hand at the beginning of the year.

"We cannot continue this high rate of lending for direct mortgage loans beyond the current year," he said. But huge amounts still would be available for public housing and other special requirements.

Punches

Screams of "You pig, you beast, you've got my sister," punctuated the struggle, as police sought to restrain the family from rescuing Valerie, who was taken away sobbing.

In the confusion, Daryl Ann made off with her adopted sister Peggy, to hide her in a neighbor's house.

Wayne arrived in a car midway through the outbreak, shouting, "Where are you taking my mother?"

Police twice had to go to the rescue of Mrs. Connolly and Donachie.

Chief Woods and Mrs. Timbrell returned a half-hour after the outbreak to retrieve Peggy, who was huddled behind an easy chair sobbing uncontrollably when they arrived at the neighbor's house.

"It's all right, Peggy," Mrs. Timbrell said. "Come along."

"Don't let them take me, mummy. Don't let them take me. I don't want to go."

Earlier in the week, the CAS had refused the Timbrells' application to adopt the children, and had told them to return them to the society's office by 10 a.m. Thursday.

OTTAWA (CP)—Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton Strathcona, one of the leaders in the Commons against unification of the armed forces, took a dig Thursday at former defence minister Paul Hellyer.

Now that Mr. Hellyer had become transport minister, asked Mr. Nugent, what was Prime Minister Pearson doing to deal with the crisis in that department as a result of the change in minister?

The prime minister drew laughter from the Commons when he replied the only crisis in the transport department was in Mr. Nugent's mind.

France Urges Peace

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville renewed Thursday the French government's call for a "decisive initiative" from the United States to end the "cruel and destructive" war in Vietnam.

He suggested in a policy address to the United Nations General Assembly that such an initiative might be an unconditional cessation of the U.S. bombing that is "ravaging North Vietnam."

"No one would approve of such a decision more than the French," he said.

LITTLE REACTION

There was little U.S. reaction here to Canada's call for a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam, officials say.

One reason for the reticence is the fact that State Secretary Dean Rusk is still doing business at the UN.

Privately, U.S. and Canadian officials say the only new feature of the proposal by Canada's External Affairs Ministry is because it would put an end to the suffering of many Vietnamese.

But he added "this indeed would probably be a first step" to peace negotiations.

Violence May Resume

Mao Opposition 'Crumbles'

TOKYO (UPI) — A Japanese foreign ministry spokesman said Thursday that Communist China shows signs of returning to normal after a long struggle between supporters and opponents of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Radio Peking Thursday quoted Chinese Premier Chou En-lai as saying Mao's opposition "has crumbled." The radio also reported the public execution before 10,000 cheering Chinese of an alleged U.S. spy.

MAO'S AUTHORITY

Japanese foreign ministry spokesman Kinya Niiseki, a top China watcher and former consul general in Hong Kong, told a news conference his "personal views" were that Mao's personal authority was being used to calm the areas of China where fighting has been most fierce.

Niiseki said Mao appeared to have the top leaders of the Chinese army on his side, and with them, had control of the mass media in China.

But despite the apparent cooling off period, Niiseki said, "I think there will be more waves" of trouble in China. He noted that Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi has dropped out of sight.

Radio Peking said a man accused of spying for the Americans was recently executed before a cheering crowd in Peking, and four other alleged U.S. spies were sentenced to prison terms, three or them for life.

Newspapers in Hong Kong said Thursday the deputy military commander of the south China city of Canton had tried to hang himself to escape constant grilling by Maoist Red Guards.

Peace Pencils

TOKYO (AP) — Several Japanese companies have imported pencils and towels made in North Vietnam with the inscribed propaganda slogan: "Let's chase Yankees out of Japan and Vietnam." Some merchants said they will donate part of their profits to Hanoi.

Arms Race Quickens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States plans to increase its nuclear striking power against the Soviet Union five to 10 times in the next few years, authoritative sources reported.

This major jump in the arms race is scheduled to take place through deployment of land-based and submarine-launched multiple warhead missiles — which would separate in flight into many targets hundreds of miles apart.

Monk Starts Saigon Sit-In Protests Rivals' Recognition

SAIGON (UPI) — The monk who heads South Vietnam's militant Buddhists and a handful of his followers spent Thursday night in a park ringed with barbed wire and combat police near the presidential palace. At midmorning today they vowed to continue the sit-in protest until the military junta bows to their demands.

The anti-government Buddhist protest was led by Thich (venerable) Tri Quang, and it was clear the Saigon government intended to keep it in check. Tri Quang began the protest Thursday night, saying he was unhappy with government answers to his charges the military junta was trying to crush his sect.

Tri Quang and his small group of monks planted themselves in the park and said he would stay there until he gets "a satisfactory answer" from the military leadership.

The militant Buddhist threatened to call in demonstrators who participated in a march with him on the palace Thursday.

Such support for Tri Quang seemed unlikely.

Squads of riot police wearing camouflaged uniforms and carrying tear gas canisters surrounded the park and penned Tri Quang and his followers inside a ring of barbed wire. Hundreds of national policemen barricaded all streets leading to the palace, creating a monumental traffic jam during the morning rush hour for blocks around.

LONG AT ODDS

Tri Quang's argument with the government involves a decree by president-elect Nguyen Van Thieu recognizing a rival, "moderate" Buddhist faction as the only legal Buddhist church in South Vietnam. Tri Quang and the leader of the moderates, Thich Tam Chau, have been at odds for months.

Thieu offered to mediate the dispute, but Tri Quang refused and began his heavily-guarded sit-in.

American Jets Blast Haiphong

SAIGON (UPI) — American jet bombers found more clear skies over Haiphong Thursday and blasted a highway bridge in the heart of the North Vietnamese port. Other planes destroyed a rocket position and four artillery emplacements in the demilitarized zone near Con Thien and B52s followed up early Friday with three heavy strikes.

Navy pilots returning from the Haiphong raids reported severe damage to the bridge. Saigon headquarters made no mention of aircraft losses. A Hanoi radio broadcast said North Vietnamese gunners shot down two American planes over Haiphong Thursday.

The Time Has Gone

IT IS TO BE HOPED, for the welfare of this nation, that Prime Minister Pearson's suggestion for a non-partisan approach to the troublesome problem of Quebec will be accepted by all political parties represented in the House of Commons—including his own.

The very fact that such an appeal has been made by a prime minister who has achieved the unenviable reputation of being one of the most partisan leaders in Canadian history should in itself be indication enough that the present threat to national unity is one of extreme seriousness and urgency.

Though only one party leader, Creditiste Real Caouette, gave immediate and unqualified support to the proposal, indications are that both the Conservative Party and the NDP will eventually fall in line, though with certain reservations.

It is perhaps understandable and reasonable that the two major opposition parties should show some reluctance to commit themselves to such an all-party endeavor until they are certain of their own stand on the matter and are assured that their views and opinions will be given full consideration by the governing party.

These, of course, are matters which can only be resolved by the party leaders themselves with the full backing of their caucus committees. It is therefore imperative that these formalities be dealt with as quickly as possible and a decision reached without delay. If all leaders and their parties can for once place the national good above partisan interests, progress toward an ultimate solution cannot help but be made.

For Canada, the time for little men with narrow minds has gone.

NHA Formula Dropped

THE building trade, potential home owners and investors generally have been deeply shocked by the government's decision to raise the maximum rate on NHA (government guaranteed) housing loans from 7 1/2 per cent to 8 1/4 per cent on October 1.

The size of the advance was not only a surprise, but was in direct conflict with the government's own policy laid down earlier this year.

In that formula the NHA loan was to be set at not more than 1 1/2 per cent above the average long term government bond yield. The present 7 1/4 per cent NHA maximum was based on the 5 1/2 per cent yield on government long paper last spring.

If that formula had been followed the NHA rate on Oct. 1 would have been 7 1/4 per cent.

Instead, the government has raised it a full half-point over the formula, and in doing so has thrown the securities market into further chaos.

By its abrupt submission to higher interest rates, the government hopes that it will be relieved of the responsibility of providing funds for home building purposes.

It is banking on the new 8 1/4 per cent rate being sufficiently attractive to bring in the private institutional money that is the backbone of the mortgage supply.

Meantime the government's other re-lending activities are not affected. Farm, fishing, welfare and student loans are still available at under 6 per cent, and are thus highly subsidized.

The unfortunate part of the move is that even if the government is successful in finding new mortgage money, it is doing so at such heavy cost that it has thrown all previous conceptions about costs of shelter to the winds.

This can only result in an increase in the cost of living index, and this in turn will provide a new basis of reckoning for higher wages, higher costs and other inflationary pressures.

Further the move towards higher borrowing costs in the housing field can only be followed by higher costs for all other borrowers—of which the government itself is the largest in the country—and thus worsens the already acute money market situation.

Security Battalion

ASSIGNMENT OF THE CANADIAN Scottish Regiment to a role of "strike company" in the internal security system of the British Columbia area will give the militia unit new purpose and enthusiasm.

The lot of the peacetime militia is not always a particularly happy one. More often than not a unit is sustained only by a dedicated group of veterans, officers for the most part, and nourished on its own traditions.

It is too seldom remembered that the survival of famous militia regiments is important, if not essential, to the task of mobilization in the event of emergency under the Canadian system of voluntary service.

For some years, now, the role of the militia has been under study by military planners. Already severely reduced in number by the then-minister of national defence, Mr. Paul Hellyer, in 1964, morale was further shaken by its assignment to a civil defence role called "national survival," a term few militiamen properly understood.

"It all but killed the militia, for survival training had no appeal for young men who join the militia to learn something, driving, wireless, gunnery, fighting and tactics... and are motivated by a sense of adventure and a rarely-recognized crusading spirit to serve a cause," Major General F. F. Worthington commented at that time.

Since then, the "tasking" of the militia across the country has been revised. Basically, it serves three purposes: a ready reserve, providing a reservoir, however shallow, from which transfer to regular units can be made; a "back-up" force for the mobile command; and a reserve for internal security and civil emergency.

It is to this third category that the Canadian Scottish has now been designated to provide company strength in a battalion for regional (British Columbia) duty. The Royal Westminster Regiment, the Rocky Mountain Rangers and the Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver, are the sister units involved.

This will be a rifle battalion, it is understood, training for amphibious operations, and while its first responsibility is internal security, it does not alter the militia status of ready reserve and possible attachment to mobile command. It gives the regiments involved more purpose, and opens the door to immediate recruitment for men between 16 and 30 in age.

"Why can't you behave like Danny, here?"

The U.S. 'Thin' System

New Radar Aids Anti-Missile Defence

By TED SELL from Washington

THE decision to go ahead with a thin defence against the threat of a Red Chinese ballistic missile attack is based on advances in radar technology as much as on improvements in U.S. anti-missile missiles.

Five years ago, the Soviet Union had about the same number of intercontinental ballistic missiles—about 100—that Red China is expected to have in the late 1970s.

The U.S. Army wanted then to proceed with deployment of a Nike-Zeus system to defend against the Soviet threat. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara ruled against deployment on grounds the system would not be effective.

Yet now, McNamara announces his plan to start before the end of the year on steps which in about five years will provide a Nike-X system to guard against possible Chinese attack.

Part of the reason for the new decision is political. The Chinese are not considered as rational as the Russians; the possibility of U.S. nuclear retaliation might not deter China as much as it has, over the years, deterred the Soviet Union, which as a more industrialized society would have more to lose in a U.S. counterstrike.

But a major factor in the decision is that with the Nike-X system—based on Nike-Zeus technology but with major improvements among all parts of the system—the possibility exists that a reasonably effective defense can be created against a less-than-saturation attack.

Exactly how effective a defense this can be is a matter which few in the Pentagon will discuss. Some sources say the "thin" defense might be about 90 per cent effective.

No one really knows. The Spartan missile on which the long-range area defense rests has not yet been flight-tested.

Last January, McNamara told Congress the Spartan was "still on the drawing board."

It still is. What the deployment program will mean is that missiles will be manufactured from components which are still undergoing research and development. Research and development to improve the system will proceed at the same time that versions of earlier "B" and "D" efforts are going through mass production.

The R and D effort, on which about four billion dollars has been spent over the years, is expected to continue at about its present level—500 million dollars a year.

The Nike-X area defense system on which McNamara proposes to spend five billion dollars in the next five years has four basic parts.

They are the Spartan missile, based on the Nike-Zeus rocket, for area defense to provide a thin screen of protection for the entire continental United States, plus Hawaii and Alaska; perimeter acquisition radar to find, identify and track incoming warheads; missile site radar to continue tracking and to guide anti-missile missiles to the warheads; and Sprint missiles for short-range "point" defense of vital areas—the perimeter acquisition radar sites and U.S. retaliatory ICBM nests.

Five years ago, when the army pushed for Nike-Zeus deployment, it was talking about an area defense rocket that could cover an area only about 100 miles from the launch site. The Spartan, according to those who should know, can cover an area up to 400 miles from the site, depending on the angle at which fired.

The difference in range means that each multi-rocket defense site can protect an area roughly 16 times that which could be defended by the earlier Nike-Zeus. The result, in McNamara terms, means that the Spartan is considerably more cost-effective. Fewer launch sites need be constructed; far fewer rockets need be manufactured so long as the threat they must meet is less than a heavy saturation attack such as Russia is now capable of launching. The Chinese are not expected to be able to launch that many missiles—to saturate defenses—before the 1980s.

But the heart of the system is, essentially, the improved radar to find incoming warheads and guide U.S. ABMs to them. It was not until 1964 that the first such radar began test operations at White Sands, New Mexico.

Both the perimeter acquisition radar and missile site radar planned for the Nike-X system are phased array models incorporating improvements on that 1964 prototype.

Early radar used a mechanical antenna which moved across the sky to track moving objects. The speeds of ICBM warheads are such that mechanically moving antennas would be unable to follow them.

The answer was the phased array system. It consists of scores of fixed radar scanners hooked to a computer. Instead of the scanner moving to follow a moving object, the object is tracked by the speed and direction of its movements across the fields covered by multiple fixed scanners.

It requires computers to receive and record the movements of a warhead and to predict from the tracked movements what the future course will be and to so rapidly enough that ABMs can be fired to intercept.

Although research and development was underway on the multiple phased array systems when the Nike-Zeus was being promoted, such radars did not exist then.

Similarly, there was no short-range missile such as the Sprint which would provide a last-ditch defense against warheads missed by the Nike-Zeus. The Sprint was unveiled in 1964.

Pentagon authorities estimate the cost of each missile in the defense system at about one million dollars and of each radar site at about 100 million dollars.

There will be, the Pentagon says, 15 to 20 Spartan sites. Each will include a number of Spartan missiles and in theory will be able to provide a cover for several states.

The number of missiles at each site and the total number of missiles to be purchased is secret. There has been speculation that about 200 Spartans on launchers are involved in the system. One source familiar with Nike-X planning said probably no two launch sites will be alike. Each will have varying numbers of missiles according to the requirements for the sector it covers.

The defense sector assigned each site will be an elliptical area corresponding to what Pentagon planners call the likely "footprint" of potential Chinese missile impact.

The elliptical sectors overlap to cover the entire United States.

Each sector will probably include a missile site radar. But the number of perimeter acquisition radar sites required for the first detection of incoming warheads is still secret.

In addition, McNamara said, the system will include Sprint close-in protection for the 1,000 American Minuteman ICBMs on which U.S. nuclear deterrence depends. The Minutemen are based at six sites in the northern United States and Missouri.

Pentagon officials said PAR sites also will receive Sprint protection to guard against having acquisition sites knocked out in the first stage of a surprise attack.

Both the Sprint and the Spartan use nuclear warheads to destroy or neutralize enemy warheads. The size of the U.S. warhead also is secret. Some have estimated, however, that to be effective with present missile accuracy the Spartan warhead may have a yield of about one megaton—equal to one million tons of TNT.

Beyond the atmosphere, radar effects are multiplied by near-vacuum conditions. A one-megaton Spartan warhead, in the view of some experts, could assure destruction of enemy warheads within several miles range.

The Sprint warhead probably has substantially smaller yield, although this, too, is classified. The Sprint would intercept warheads at a slant distance of 15 to 25 miles from the target area. It might detonate as low as 50,000 feet.

A large-yield Sprint warhead detonation at low altitude would raise the possibility of substantial blast damage and radioactivity below the defensive interception.

Minuteman missiles to be defended already are underground "hardened" sites, protected from the possibility of damage by Sprint. Presumably, the perimeter acquisition sites must also be hardened to whatever degree is possible, considering that the multiple radar scanners must themselves be exposed.

This is a planned economy. Plans must be printed on paper. The annual state plan for the economy (Gosplan) weighs about seven tons before duplication for distribution all over the country.

Then there is the hangover from the Stalinist period when no one wanted to stick out his neck for fear of losing it. Reason to do any work without written approval was often a sine qua non for survival.

Initiative, which is now being encouraged was very risky during the Stalinist purges. The paper shortage has had widespread ramifications in the U.S.S.R. Paper has sanitary uses, and a shortage causes

To get anything done in the Soviet Union, you have to have a piece of paper authorizing you to go ahead. What's written on the paper may not make much sense, but if it's properly stamped, signed or imprinted with a seal, it can work wonders.

Paper in the Soviet Union often has a charismatic aura. Without the magic piece of paper, a bureaucrat is not likely to pay much attention to your pleas, no matter what dire straits you are in.

Paper is a great benefactor who runs the bureaucracy. It creates work and jobs. It is something to shuffle, to look busy with, to puzzle over, to lose, and to route to other departments ad infinitum.

The Chinese have attempted to woo the ruler of Sikkim, 44-year-old Maharaja Palden Thondup Namgyal, over the years, but he has consistently left their communications unanswered. The Bubbling Gorge

THE local municipal councillors must be really proud of being part owners of what must be Canada's largest open septic tank... namely the Gorge.

As a new centennial project they suggest dredging it out deeper and wider, running more semi-processed drain water into it and retaining its effluent. Park benches have already been put up so that local citizens and tourists can inhale the fumes and count the fermentation bubbles whilst sitting in comfort.

How many more technical investigations have to be done? A feasibility survey has been made to cut a canal west of Christie Point to Esquimalt Harbor, with control gates at each end to allow high tides in at the east-end and water out at the west end at low tide.

A twice daily inflow of fresh water would prevent stagnation, clear the water and maybe encourage FISH instead of gas bubbles to jump and enjoy themselves.

Intervention

It was with the deepest satisfaction that I noted Mr. Dean Rusk's concern for freedom and liberty in Latin America which he expressed at the present meeting of the OAS in Washington. He also deplored the excursions of Cuban Communist bands into several Latin American countries.

I wonder if he really thinks he can fool all the people all the time. He has conveniently forgotten U.S. intervention in Santo Domingo, Guatemala, Bolivia and several other countries and his avid support for the military dictatorships in Brazil, Argentina, Paraguay and numerous other Latin-American countries where a very minute minority owns most of the land and wealth and the vast majority live in dire poverty. This must be Mr. Rusk's definition of freedom and liberty.

Of course Mr. Rusk's concern for freedom and liberty is not confined only to Latin America as U.S. policy supports ruthless dictatorships in all parts of the world and any attempt by the poverty-stricken masses to better their lot is immediately

Your paper reveals numerous problems that plague our society. We have achieved amazing accomplishments physically and technologically; energy consuming devices have literally lifted the burden and drudgery from man's shoulders; still, all is not well because we have not yet applied the same technique to our social problems.

Technocracy has the answer to many of our disreputable social problems, be it pollution of air, water and food, labor strikes, layoffs or shutouts, youth problems, riots, crime or drug addiction, waste, poverty, malnutrition, disease, population explosion, or transportation and its toll of highway accidents; but not enough to keep up with the seemingly insatiable demands of the system.

In the Archangel region where a pulp and paper mill was built a "problem" arose when it was discovered there wasn't a power plant to provide electricity. Production was delayed three years.

It is estimated the Soviet Union has a quarter of all the world's forests, which means there should be sufficient timber for paper-making. Recently, however, there have been reports about certain weaknesses in the Soviet reforestation program. One Moscow paper blamed the elk for eating young saplings and thus preventing them from growing into tall trees, which could be turned into paper for the bureaucracy.

The elk may save Russia yet. (Telegram News Service)

Pressure on a Weak Spot

RESEMBLING a huge head nodding sideways on a thin neck, Northeast India is connected with the rest of the country by a narrow stretch of land running between Tibet and East Pakistan. There lies Sikkim, the Sino-Indian border state, where Peking has resumed military pressure.

Sikkim has been an Indian protectorate since 1950, a semi-independent mountain state with its defence and external affairs administered from Delhi. It is at this point along the 2,000-mile border that, by a brief southward thrust to Pakistan, China could cut its southern neighbor into two.

The Chinese have attempted to woo the ruler of Sikkim, 44-year-old Maharaja Palden Thondup Namgyal, over the years, but he has consistently left their communications unanswered. The ruler recently took his American-born wife on a state visit to the south where he reasserted that "Sikkim is firmly wedded to India."

Thus the recent Indo-Chinese artillery duel at Sikkim, described by Indian spokesmen as the most serious border incident since the Indo-Pakistan conflict, China came to Pakistan's aid by massing troops along the border in Tibet, tying down Indian forces. It was at that time that Peking served an ultimatum demanding the dismantling of Indian defence installations at Sikkim which, the Chinese later claimed, was carried out.

Diplomatic and military observers feared at the time that a Chinese southward advance would involve East Pakistan in the war on the sub-continent and paralyze the traffic of vital supplies, including oil, between Northeast India and the rest of the country. At present, however, such an adventure appears unlikely.

Yet the danger remains: China "liberated" Tibet seven years ago. It has now a network of roads, obviously constructed with an eye to military requirements, reaching to Sikkim. Peking's aggressive policy towards India is assumed to serve a double purpose. One is to thwart India in the competition with China for leadership in the developing world by compelling it to divert a considerable proportion of its economic resources to defence. The other is simply to let off some of the pressure of the internal turmoil created by the leadership struggle in China.

The recent clashes occurred at the 15,000-foot mountain pass of Nathu La. Gangtok, the capital of Sikkim, is only 20 miles from the scene of the fighting.

Soviet Leaders Talking More and Liking It Less

Russia Hardens Vietnam Line

By RICHARD RESTON, from Moscow

The Soviet Union has shifted its field of fire on Vietnam to take maximum political advantage of the domestic and foreign criticism of President Johnson's war policy.

This is a capital that is now talking more about the war in Vietnam and clearly liking it less.

It is speaking out in more specific terms than before about what it is prepared to do to help North Vietnam meet the challenge of American power.

Moscow no longer is relying on the simple catch phrase about "all-around" assistance to Hanoi. Instead, it is talking about "growing" Soviet support to North Vietnam, and even calling attention to a wide and detailed assortment of military hardware moving to that country.

Recent developments here seem to suggest a Kremlin desire to create at least a new impression about the Russian role in Vietnam. That impression is one of stepped-up activity, heavier assistance to North Vietnam, and deeper Soviet concern that the conlict will spill across borders with ever higher risks for both Moscow and Washington.

There is a new note of irritation and of some urgency in Moscow's public pronouncements these days. This may have more to do with impressions and tactics than with the substance of Soviet policy in Vietnam.

Nevertheless, western diplomats are not so apt to dismiss Soviet comments on Vietnam as simply part of the same old propaganda tune.

The question is why the Kremlin at this time chose to introduce new twists to its public posture. The answer, as one diplomat put it, is that the "political market" in the United States and among American allies in Western Europe is now ripe for the Soviet argument on Vietnam.

His reference was to growing disenchantment and even bitter disagreement over

Johnson's position in Southeast Asia.

Accordingly, sources here foresee the possibility of a major new Soviet push to exploit political pressures contradicting the President.

To support this thesis they make the following points:

● Moscow is giving more and more publicity to the opponents of the U.S. administration.

● In the past the Soviet Union has used for its anti-Vietnam propaganda mostly leading American political symbols, such as Sen. Robert J. Kennedy and J. William Fulbright, or intellectual figures of the likes of Arthur Schlesinger Jr. and John K. Galbraith.

Now almost anybody, from a civil rights leader to an obscure group of professors, with any kind of Vietnam protest, no matter how irrational or extreme, can get an airing somewhere in the Soviet press.

● The Kremlin signed an extensive new military and economic accord with North Vietnam last weekend. In a departure from the previous agreement, Moscow offered a public and detailed account of the types of military equipment the Soviet Union will ship to North Vietnam in 1968.

● The equipment ranges from modern jets to surface-to-surface missiles. By stressing the military side of the joint communiqué, the Kremlin in effect warned the international community that the risks in Vietnam are becoming more dangerous the longer the conflict drags on.

● It is felt that Soviet attempts to give the impression of a bolder Vietnam policy are tied in part to the new United Nations general assembly session. The hope, it is suggested, is to prod as many nations as possible into expressing reservations about the general drift of the Vietnam war.

● Soviet attacks on U.S. policy in Vietnam appear to be moving closer to the President personally. While there is not yet a full-scale assault on Johnson, the attacks have at least reached the White House grounds with constant and bitter Soviet references to Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, the joint chiefs of staff, "ruling circles" in the United States and "American hawks" in the administration.

All of this suggests a concerted Soviet effort to reach the president's critics and this to heighten American political divisions over Vietnam.

Qualified sources here see Moscow's present position as a clear attempt to limit the administration's freedom of political action, specifically its military initiatives in Southeast Asia.

If this can be done by raising the anti-war temperature inside the United States and elsewhere, then the Kremlin will have gained some ground without running the far more dangerous risk of an open east-west confrontation over Vietnam.

Vietnam Statement Economically Risky

Canada Flirts with Danger

By DAVE MCINTOSH, From Ottawa

The speech of External Affairs Minister Martin to the United Nations General Assembly Wednesday may signal a profound change in Canada-U.S. relations.

Martin called on the U.S. to stop bombing North Vietnam — period. No longer was the rider attached that the U.S. should stop if Hanoi would quit its infiltration of South Vietnam.

In other words, Canada threw overboard a policy from which it had not deviated since the North Vietnamese began their infiltration from the South more than a decade ago.

One reason, Ottawa informants say, is that despite its pounding from the air, North Vietnam is winning the war.

By "winning" is meant continuation of the war into the fall of 1968 until President Johnson is defeated in the U.S. presidential election and is replaced according to Hanoi's calculations, by someone willing to call it quits.

Mr. Martin is said to feel that the last chance for the U.S. to extract itself from the present situation with some prestige left is to stop the bombing now and hope that Hanoi will negotiate.

Martin's policy all along has been to keep Canadian channels open to both Washington and Hanoi in the hope that, when the time came to negotiate, a negotiating circuit still would be open.

He may have damaged or even destroyed the Washington channel with his stop-the-bombing speech.

The speech may indicate moreover, a gradual drawing away by Canada from the U.S.

Prime Minister Pearson has said Canada will not participate in co-operation geographically, financially or technically with the U.S. in construction of a counter-missile system.

And to the annoyance of Washington, he has continued to call for Communist China's membership in the UN.

If Canada does draw away from the U.S., the converse could and probably would apply.

The trouble here is that when the U.S. catches an economic cold, Canada gets pneumonia.

Ottawa has always been sensitive to the possibility of U.S. economic reprisals if it took a firmly contradictory line in its dealings with Washington.

This is the measure of Martin's speech in the UN.

Meaning of Higher Interest Rates

Ottawa Follows Market

By JAMES NELSON
From Ottawa

Money really is becoming worth a pretty penny.

Some financial authorities here see interest rates rising even higher before they are pushed back again by market forces.

In the meantime it's going to cost you more to borrow, and those who have money to loan or invest are going to make more profit.

Starting Monday, the chartered banks, trust and insurance companies will be permitted to charge up to 8 1/2 per cent on mortgages on which they are guaranteed against loss by the federal government under the National Housing Act.

A spokesman for Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said the Crown agency hoped this would bring the NHA rate into line with conventional mortgage rates, and not prompt them to move higher. But already rates of 11 and 12 per cent a year were being sought in the Ottawa area by some investors willing to put their money privately into mortgages without the NHA guarantee.

This year the money supply has been permitted to grow more rapidly than in any other year in the 1960s. As of mid-September, currency in circulation and chartered bank deposits held by the general public totalled $23,120,000,000, up $2,908,000,000 in the year.

But governments, corporations and others wanting to borrow money still have to pay higher interest.

The government next week will be delivering bonds to investors on which it will have to pay six per cent, in order to redress the 3 1/2- and 4 1/2-per cent bonds falling due.

The Bank of Canada this week adjusted its bank rate upwards, to five per cent from 4 1/2. This is the rate at which the chartered banks frequently borrow funds from the central bank for short periods.

Its movements usually are taken as signals of what the Bank of Canada thinks the interest-rate climate should be. But in its announcement Tuesday the bank said the rate was being moved up to keep it "appropriate" to the yield on short-term securities.

Some government sources expressed consternation about the strength of protest cabinet ministers were receiving Thursday after announcement of the higher NHA interest ceiling.

They said it was hard to get across the government's viewpoint that the higher rates were not initiated by the government, but were reflecting money market conditions.

A feature of this year's financial statistics has been the increase in government borrowings. On Aug. 2, total outstanding treasury bills, Canada savings bonds and other securities, and bonds guaranteed by the federal government reached $21,463,000,000. The total at Jan. 4 was $21,061,000,000.

While the government has increased its debt by $400,000,000, the general public has reduced its holdings of government securities by more than that amount, from $12,889,000,000 at Jan. 4 down to $12,343,000,000 at Aug. 2, and down further to $12,114,000,000 at Sept. 20. The chartered banks and the Bank of Canada have taken up the difference.

Suez Canal Closure Keeps Britain's Economy in Red

By ROBERT C. TOTH
From London

The reason Britain attaches "extreme importance" to reopening the Suez Canal was spelled out in money for the first time this week: it is costing this country an extra $50,000,000 a month in oil imports.

At this rate it seems all but certain that a surplus in her overall balance of payments (total expenditures abroad, compared to total income from abroad) will again elude this economically troubled nation.

A small surplus had been expected this year before the Mideast war broke out in June. But then the canal, through which Britain and West Europe get most of its oil, was closed with sunken and stranded ships by petulant Egyptians.

Now it looks like the canal will stay shut for at least the rest of this year. Once clearing work is begun in earnest, it will take three months or more to resume operation. Beyond the 16 marooned or scuttled ships, silt that has built up in the waterway must be dredged out.

Cairo officials see continued closure of the canal as a weapon with which to pressure the West into making Israel pull back from captured territories that extend to the canal's east bank.

But Egypt may be the loser in this policy in the long run.

The closure is accelerating the trend toward supertankers that go around Africa from the Mideast oilfields to Europe. Esao this week announced orders for six 240,000-ton giants, for example.

The tankers each cost about $18,000,000, but this high cost is an insurance premium against further troubles with the canal. Such vessels cannot now pass through, but even if it were deepened, economists say it will still be cheaper to sail a supertanker around the Cape of Good Hope than to send it through the canal and pay transit fees.

For Britain, the oil import bill for August was $50,000,000 higher than for August one year ago, with the import tonnage about the same.

For the whole year, the increased cost could run $200,000,000 or more — $50,000,000 a month for five months, but the bills for June and July were down markedly because tonnage was off as much as 40 per cent.

Aberfan Verdict Angers Parents

MERTHYR TYDFIL (AP)—Angry parents wept and shouted outside a courthouse in this Welsh community Thursday after a coroner announced verdicts of accidental death for the 144 victims of the Aberfan coal disaster.

"Tell them it's a farce," cried one mother.

The parents had watched pale and silent inside the court as coroner Benjamin Hamilton took just four minutes to deliver his verdict.

He then formally closed the mass inquest, which opened almost a year ago following the Oct. 21 disaster when 116 Aberfan children were buried alive in a huge slide of black coal sludge.

Hamilton said he was bound by the findings of a government appointed tribunal which found the National Coal Board and some of its employees responsible but passed no criminal indictment.

Deadly Fumes Strike Twice

WILMINGTON, Calif. (UPI)—Two persons died Thursday and 72 others were rushed to hospitals for emergency treatment after deadly chlorine gas escaped from a chemical plant here.

Nine hours later authorities again evacuated the area surrounding the plant when a second wave of toxic fumes was leaked into the atmosphere.

The second toxic cloud was identified as hydrogen chloride leaking from a railroad tank car at a siding at the plant and firemen said it could cause death or permanent injury after short exposure.

Less than nine hours earlier an explosion at the American Chemical Co. plant triggered by lightning released lethal cloud of chlorine gas.

County firemen identified hydrogen chloride as simply hydrochloric acid under 100 pounds of pressure and said they were attempting to dilute it with fog streams.

Villagers Fight Isolation

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—About 200 residents of the tiny south coast village of Grey River have launched a battle for "re-unification" with the outside world, following loss of a telegraph link and a regular hospital ship service to the port earlier this year.

The 35 families in the hamlet 22 miles east of Burgeo have gone to Premier Joseph Smallwood with their complaint and threatened to close down a tungsten pilot mine in the community unless they get action.

Mr. Smallwood was not available Thursday for comment, but Canadian National Telegraph officials said they were working on plans to restore service to Grey River.

Quebec MP Visits B.C.

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MP Ron Basford said Thursday he will introduce Quebec colleague Ovide Laflamme as guest speaker at the British Columbia Young Liberal convention Saturday night at Vancouver.

Laflamme, Liberal MP for Quebec Montmorency, is parliamentary secretary to Registrar-General John Turner.

On Wednesday, Basford, MP for Vancouver Burrard and chairman of the Western Liberal caucus, said visits by Quebec MPs to western Canada should not be arranged without concurrence of his group.

None of the other nine Liberals from the four western provinces supported Mr. Basford.

The Vancouver MP commented Wednesday on the statement by Agriculture Minister Green that teams of Quebec MPs would go to western Canada to explain their pro-Confederation stand.

Greene added Thursday in an interview it would be a good idea if English-speaking MPs visited Quebec so that there would be a greater exchange of ideas.

He said no Canadian needs a passport to travel to British Columbia.

Sherbrooke MP's Bill Would Replace Jack

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill that would allow replacement of the Union Jack by the Canadian flag at Canadian ceremonies involving the Queen or the Governor-General was introduced in the Commons Thursday by Maurice Allard (Ind.-Sherbrooke). When the Maple Leaf flag was adopted in 1965 the Union Jack was retained as the royal emblem to be flown for the Queen or her representatives.

Absenteeism Draws Stanfield's Arrows

OTTAWA (CP)—Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Thursday there have been too few Liberal cabinet ministers in the Commons so far to enable him to form a judgment of the government.

He said at a luncheon at the National Press Club that he admires Prime Minister Pearson's courage for facing the Commons each day with so few ministers present to reply to questions.

The former Nova Scotia premier said he would never have been brave enough to face his legislature with so many ministers absent.

Stanfield, who watches Commons proceedings from the gallery pending a byelection also said he is surprised that almost all the press gallery leaves the Commons after the question period and does not return.

Everyone had been so kind to him since his election as leader that he feared the press would not point out his defects in the usual way it treated public figures.

Oil Gamble Ready

FORT McMURRAY, Alta. (CP)—Press a thumb on a square inch of Athabasca oil sands and the oil leaves a mark. What kind of mark will 30,000 square miles of it leave on the North American economy?

The oil industry's answer is that the impact will be massive — if the sand can be worked. And on Saturday, a $235,000,000 gamble to see if it can will be ceremonially switched into operation.

The gamble is an extraction operation by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd., on 6.6 square miles of sands. Under the patch alone, there are an estimated 650,000,000 barrels of recoverable "synthetic" crude oil.

VAST SUPPLY

The sands, forming the world's largest known oil sand reservoir, were seen by explorer Peter Pond in 1788. The Indians used geese from them to waterproof their canoes.

Shutdown Due

TRAIL (CP)—Cominco Ltd. says its zinc and phosphate fertilizer plants here will be shut down Oct. 2-14 to "adjust production for inventory control." More than 200 men will be off work for a maximum of four days during the adjustments.

'Nurse Brief Propaganda'

A spokesman for the provincial government Thursday attacked B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association for resorting to propaganda and misuse of statistics in seeking wage increases and fringe benefits.

R. D. Higgins, appearing for the Civil Service Commission, told a fact-finding panel the approach used by the nurses group through the hearings was incompatible with the professional status it seeks.

The nurses refused to accept the CSC policy of comparability with registered nurses and instead were using wages of manual laborers for comparison, said Mr. Higgins.

They also, he added, either had a badly disorganized submission or subscribed to the propagandist belief "that if people are told something often enough he or she will believe it."

IMPROPER USE?
Mr. Higgins charged the submission was based on improper use of published statistics and said he would cite "notable misuse and abuse" in this area during detailed rebuttal of the 61 exhibits submitted by the nurses.

Dwight Wenham, executive secretary of the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the nurses could not accept the principle of comparability with registered nurses, because RN groups hadn't used their bargaining power properly.

FRINGE BENEFITS
He said salaries for both psychiatric nurses and registered nurses should be in the middle-upper range of technical and skilled tradesmen. Both groups of nurses were equally badly paid, the panel was told.

Mr. Wenham also argued that comparability with registered nurses meant more than salary. It should also include fringe benefits, where government employees generally lagged, and the full rights of collective bargaining.

EFFORT, SKILL
Until such time as this goal was achieved, Mr. Wenham said, psychiatric nurses had no other choice than to demand salaries "in accordance with weight of responsibility, effort and skill required in the performance of duties."

Mr. Higgins said the Civil Service Commission rejected any suggestion that psychiatric nurses should have higher pay than RNs because it would create "an untenable situation."

FACT 'IGNORED'
An obvious misuse of statistics cited by Mr. Higgins was the exhibit intended by nurses to show that their salary did not meet average spending in the Vancouver area. He added that the survey quoted was based upon 1.36 wage-earners per family, a fact which the nurses ignored.

The nurses also used comparative wage figures at Vancouver General Hospital which were part of a contract which was only signed Aug. 2, 1967, long after negotiations with the commission commenced, he said.

READY IN TIME
Rebuttal by both sides Thursday wound up three days of hearings by a fact-finding panel headed by Dr. Gordon Blott of Nanaimo. The panel's findings will be binding on both sides.

Insurance Changes Indicated

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday he hopes amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act can be introduced at an early date but declined to say whether coverage will be extended to registered nurses.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) pressed unsuccessfully for a reply on coverage of nurses who now are excluded and generally want to retain that status.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) asked whether the government had abandoned the idea of raising maximum benefits to $65 weekly from $36.

Nicholson replied hotly that the government never had such an idea in the first place. This arose from "reckless statements" such as those of Woolliams.

Right to Interfere Tested, Lost In Police Court

TORONTO (CP) — John Napiorkowski, 27, charged with assaulting a police officer, "was fined $25 Wednesday and lectured on his need to respect authority after he told Magistrate R. C. Taylor:

● That he tried to stop three or four policemen from beating a teenager;

● That a policeman stomped on his toe;

● That he was cured as a foreigner by a policeman.

A transcript of the dialogue between the magistrate and the accused was published in full by The Globe and Mail.

The Crown accused Napiorkowski of grabbing Constable Robert Copeland while other officers escorted to a patrol car two persons arrested for fighting in the street.

Napiorkowski said that wasn't the way it happened.

"... There were about three or four police officers beating up — I mean literally beating up — a young lad about 16 to 18."

"Have you any right to interfere with the actions of a police officer?" asked the magistrate.

"No, necessarily..."

"Not necessarily... period," the magistrate said. "You have no right to interfere with a police officer in the execution of his duties. If he is doing something wrong there are other tribunals that will put it right. It's not for you."

Napiorkowski said he asked an officer to stop the beating.

"Why? What right did you have to ask him anything?"

"I saw a young lad getting beaten up."

"That's none of your business, is it?"

"I felt it was, just by human nature."

"Your business is not to interfere with the business of a police officer."

Napiorkowski said he wasn't trying to interfere with anyone.

"You shouldn't have said a word and you shouldn't have touched anyone," said Magistrate Taylor.

"Your Honor, he asked me who I was..."

"Of course, because you were interfering with what he was trying to do."

"Then he stepped on my toe, slammed his foot on my toe."

"You shouldn't have been that close to him, you should have kept away from him."

Napiorkowski said the officer used an obscenity in calling him a foreigner and "this riled me up, since I am a foreigner, or..."

"It's none of your business whatsoever."

"I just couldn't appreciate a police officer just beating, abusing a human body the way he was, and there was four on one."

"Your Honor, I just couldn't appreciate it and I couldn't help it."

"I'm sorry I am guilty, technically guilty. However, by human nature I don't feel I am because I'd probably do it again."

Bonds Reel Under Loan Blow

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The Canadian bond market ran into new all-time lows Thursday as staggered dealers adjusted themselves to the government's new limit of 8 1/2 per cent on guaranteed National Housing Act loans.

For an hour after the market opened, dealers attempted to find new levels at which trading could be done. It was not easy because bids melted away, and dealers declined to add to their already thin inventories.

As a result initial quotations were on a "subject" basis and in most cases they were off half a point from the weak close of the previous day.

The 4 1/2 per cent of 1938, which are regarded as a key long term Government bond, were quoted at 81 1/2 bid, giving them a yield of over 6.40 per cent, and putting them at a lower price than they have ever been before.

Other long term securities were down about the same, although in some cases provincial and corporation bonds were down a full point.

There was no immediate indication from the government's action in raising the NHA ceiling that more mortgage money would be made available.

Tendency was to cement feelings that maybe the worst of the bond market has yet to be experienced.

General impression was that conventional mortgage rates, which have been about 8 1/2 to 9 per cent, would go up to nine per cent, thus nullifying the government's hike of the NHA rate.

'VICIOUS SPIRAL'

One dealer commented "A vicious spiral of inflation has hit the bond and mortgage market."

Another dealer commented that it was difficult to reconcile the existence of a bond market that gave potential yields of more than seven per cent while the majority of better class common stocks were yielding between three and four per cent.

Cepeda, Not Giants, Put Cards in Series

By JIM MURRAY

Any kid in the country who collects bubblegum cards could have told the Giants' Chub Feeney he was making a mistake. You don't get one Cepeda for one Sadecki. You have to throw in at least a complete infield and leave the gum on it.

When Chub sprang the deal on a visiting newsmen, he asked, "What would you do if the Cardinals offered Sadecki for Cepeda?" the writer answered, "Call the police."

Chub might have done better if he advertised in the better journals of commerce "for sale or trade: one National League pennant with or without world championship attached. Does not eat much, salary negligible, all unreasonable offers considered."

Ordinarily, a baseball trade is a simple exchange of two disappointments in the hopes a change of environment will inspire one or both of them to mediocrity, but Chub Feeney was putting on the market a prize bull who had knocked in 767 runs, had poled 226 home runs and had a lifetime average of .308. One year, he hit for 355 total bases and he out-hit, out-homered and out-run-batted-in more storied teammate, Willie Mays. He had stolen as many as 23 bases in a season.

You might think from the foregoing that Chub Feeney had caught Orlando Manuel Cepeda poisoning the San Francisco water supply, or selling Mare Island navy yard pictures to the communists, or pulling the wings off birds as a hobby, but Orlando's worst fault was playing left field. He didn't even have dandruff or snore.

You had to wonder what Chub would have gotten for Rogers Hornsby. Waiters?

Orlando Manuel Cepeda is one of the strongest men ever to play the game of baseball. He swings a bat which, if it had leaves on it, you would take for a well-grown tree.

His father was to Caribbean baseball what Babe Ruth was to the American game. "Perucho" Cepeda was a man so powerful he had been known to hit baseballs so hard they couldn't even find the ravelings and so stubborn he stole back his clothes and left the hospital when he had only three days to live. He died of cirrhosis of the liver but his son says it was not from alcohol, which he did not drink, but from polluted water at the dockyards where he worked — and there may be a lesson in these things.

Orlando Cepeda has sometimes seemed to have less a career than a long-term tantrum. He was tackled by Mays once as he seemed to be maneuvering himself into homicide position over Danny Murtaugh and, as one writer said, when Mays and Elio Chacon tangled in New York once, Orlando fought on the undercard against Roger Craig. And he threw a baseball into a crowd of jeerers in Puerto Rico one winter.

Cepeda is the best hitter in baseball at the moment, certified able by averages, hits, runs-batted-in. His numerous walks indicate he will no longer try to hit anything that does not hit him first.

His career has been aggravated by a slightly bowed and twisted right leg — not so much because of what it does to him as what it does to his managers. Stories have been released ascribing his semi-limp to everything from post-polio to a fall from a tree but "Peruchin" (as his adoring followers in San Juan call him) insists it's nothing more than a residue from a cartilage operation at the age of 14. Not even when he stole 71 bases in his first four seasons in the big leagues would the stories die. Another cartilage operation in 1965 gave the Giants a chance to say "see," and gave them a chance to put Willie McCovey on first base and Orlando Cepeda in the world series.

If he doesn't win the MVP award this year, the winner should blindfold it the minute he gets it. And Chub Feeney should get in touch with the Better Business Bureau, racket squad and the bunco detail the next time St. Louis comes offering left-handed pitchers for all-time sluggers.

Four-Way Tie For Lead In Atlanta Golf

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Late starting Miller Barber and Randy Glover struggled through the gloom of a raw and blustery day with three-under-par 69s to match shots with Don January and Charlie Sifford as a four-way tie for the lead developed Thursday in the opening round of the $115,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

The four veteran pros had a single stroke lead over five other golfers as rain and chilling winds swept the 7,043-yard Atlanta Country Club course in what was described as the roughest day on the Professional Golfers Association tour this year.

January, the 37-year-old PGA champion, paired with Sifford in an early finish and said: "This is my kind of weather." He went one over par on the first nine of the par 36-72 layout, but finished with a flurry of birdies to end the back nine in 32 strokes.

Sifford 44, said he is playing as well as he has in his career. His 31-putt round, going over par once but offsetting this with four birdies, included a 20-foot-er from the fringe on the 400-yard 12th hole.

Barber canned three birdies and missed only one green for his 69, and Glover finished with a flourish, getting three birdies on the final nine.

Ted Gerela Gains In Scoring

Ted Gerela, British Columbia Lions soccer-type kicking specialist, moved into the top 10 in the Western Football Conference individual conference race Wednesday.

He scored five points on a field goal and two converts as Lions trounced Winnipeg Blue Bombers 17-1.

Saskatchewan's Jack Abend-schan is in first place with 53 points.

Jockeys Set Down

Two apprentice riders have been given three-day suspensions by stewards for rides which Monday brought a first at Sandown Park with disqualification of winning thoroughbreds in successive races.

Jim Gilbert, who rode Alencor in the fifth race, and Jim Arnold, on Milard of Kent in the sixth, will start serving their time tomorrow.

Their enforced inactivity continues through the Monday and Wednesday cards.

A third rider, Charles Kron, has been suspended indefinitely for conduct which had nothing to do with riding at Sandown, where he has yet to accept a mount.

The reason given for Kron's suspension was a somewhat cryptic "misconduct on the backstretch."

Bolstered Burnaby Club Next Test for O'Keefes

Burnaby Villa, a sixth-place team in the Pacific Coast Soccer League last season, will be here Saturday with only five holdovers but Victoria O'Keefe's may be facing a coming PCSL power when they play their second league game.

Burnaby-manager Joe Howarth isn't at all certain of what kind of a club he has but he finds the possibilities "interesting" and is more than willing to take his chances on what is perhaps the league's most altered lineup.

Biggest reason for his cautious optimism is the presence of five newcomers brought to Canada by Vancouver Royal Canadians of the professional United Soccer League.

PROSPECTS

All are amateurs but they are really apprentice professionals.

The USL season doesn't open until April and the five prospects will be playing for Villa until then, and trying to make the kind of impression that will get them a long look from the Royal Canadians.

All are starting Saturday at Royal Athletic Park, where action gets underway at 2 p.m.

Villa also has four other Old Country players. Scotsman Les Way is listed to start at inside-left and countryman Bob Hill and Englishmen Ray Thrusell and Simon Ostler are on the spare list.

SHOULD BE INTERESTING

"I don't know what I've got yet," Howarth said last night. "The new boys arrived here only last week and we haven't done much practicing together. However, I have to feel that they must have ability to be brought over and that our club has interesting possibilities."

The newcomers take the places of five players lost to the University of British Columbia and they help make Villa probably the youngest club next to UBC.

"I would say," Howarth related, "that our average age is between 21 and 22 years old."

His holdover starters include goalkeeper Al McLeod, full-backs Bob Durante and Ivo Katich, right-half Ivo Katich, centre-half Ivo Katich, and rightwinger Harold Hansen.

NEED SCORING PUNCH

For O'Keefe's, the defending champions, the problem Saturday will be trying to generate some scoring punch.

They were beaten twice, once when it counted, 1-0 by UBC and manager Frank Grealy is understandably concerned over the inability to finish.

However, there will be only two chances from the lineup which lost the league opener to the Thunderbirds last Sunday.

The MacKay, who started that game at inside-left, will move to centre on the attacking unit, replacing Jim Mendes, who is hobbled by a pulled leg muscle. Bert Sutar steps in to fill MacKay's old position.

Marty Taylor and Peter Brett, on the right side, and leftwinger Peter Wilson complete the forward line.

Dick Joyce, a former Cowdenbeath player teaching at Shawnaig Lake School, who is a centre-forward prospect, continued to work out with O'Keefe's last night but isn't scheduled to play Saturday.

George Paul, Bill Hamilton and Tom Westwater will continue to operate on the intermediate line and Dave Stothard and Don McIntosh will be in front of keeper Barry Sadler.

Greatly will choose from Dunc McCall, Russ Ball, Brian Robinson and Ray Telford if reinforcements are needed.

Weather Delays World Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Rain forced a one-day postponement of Thursday night's scheduled world middleweight title fight at Shea Stadium between champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy and ex-champ Emilio Griffith of New York.

The 15-round match was rescheduled for tonight at 10 p.m. EDT although the weather forecast said there was an 80 per cent chance of continued rain.

If there is a second postponement the rematch will be held Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. The field must be ready for New York Jets' football opener Sunday.

Both fighters must weigh in again today at 11 a.m. At Thursday's late morning weigh-in, Benvenuti just met the class limit of 160 pounds and Griffith came in at 155, his heaviest for a championship match.

In their first fight, April 17, Benvenuti weighed 158, Griffith 155½.

Phoenix Edges Seattle Totems

They were on the ice when Iannone evened matters late in the period when Bernie Gould trapped an attempted Phoenix clearance and fed the puck to the goalmouth.

Smith connected on a backhand slap shot early in the third after taking Bob Kabel's pass from the corner but Dineen tied it again at 6:18 on Earl Heiskala's pass again after sloppy clearing by the Roadrunners.

FIGHTS ADD SPICE

Two fights added spice to an otherwise spotty game for the 1,500 fans.

Marty Desmarais tangled with Seattle's Larry Lund after being speared in the first period and Gerry Leonard came out swinging after being boarded by Ron Marcette in the third. All four drew majors with Lund getting an addition two minutes for spearing. Phoenix drew five of nine other minors.

Phoenix used Rick Charron, Claude Cyr and David Haine a period each in goal and all three came through well in stiff testing.

Seattle's Guyle Fielder did not play because of illness.

Weather Gets Into Act, Delays Pennant Struggle

They may have to scrape snow off the playing surfaces before the 1967 world series is completed.

The series is scheduled to start next Wednesday in the home park of whatever club wins the American League pennant, but it may be delayed by two, three, four, five or even more days.

It all depends on whether the American League will need a playoff to decide its champion. And it is possible that weather could delay things even more.

Because either Minnesota Twins or Boston Red Sox will be eliminated in the two-game series they start tomorrow to close out their scheduled seasons, no more than three teams can be involved in a playoff.

Should it end in a three-way tie, Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers and either the Twins or Red Sox will open a round-robin, double-loss playoff next Monday.

It would take a minimum of four days and a maximum of five, setting the series start back to the following Sunday or Monday.

A two-team tie would be decided in a best-of-three playoff starting Monday, delaying the series to next Friday or Saturday.

Then there is the chance that weather could play a hand in delaying things. That became a possibility yesterday when the Tigers were rained out of their scheduled game against California Angels.

FOUR GAMES TO PLAY

That leaves only three days for the Tigers and California Angels to complete their season-ending four-game series.

They are scheduled for a doubleheader today and single games tomorrow and Saturday. Chicago White Sox are booked for single games today, tomorrow and Sunday against Washington Senators and the Twins and Red Sox are down to play their games Saturday and Sunday.

The tight schedule leaves the possibility that rain in either Chicago, Detroit or Boston could prevent the completion of the league season on Sunday.

It being unlikely that a pennant decision would be made unless each of the contenders has played their 162 scheduled games, that would mean an extension of the season. And that could delay the start of any playoff.

SCHEDULED TO START

Joe Spina (15-9) and Earl Wilson (22-11) are scheduled to start for the Tigers today as they try to move into a first-place tie with the Twins.

The White Sox have named Tommy John (10-11) to start today.

There are all kinds of possibilities in the remaining schedule.

The Red Sox must beat the Twins twice to have any hope, being one game out on the losing side at the moment.

If that happens, the Tigers could win it by making a four-game sweep over the Angels. If the Tigers lose once and the White Sox sweep, it would then be a three-way tie.

AND THEN AGAIN . . .

If Boston and Minnesota split, the Tigers and White Sox remain in the same position as in the Boston sweep. But if the Twins sweep, only the Tigers, who would also have to have a sweep, would have a chance.

Only the pitcher-rich White Sox have their rotation set for the remaining games. They plan on starting Gary Peters (16-10) tomorrow and finish with Joel Horlen (13-7) on Sunday.

The Tigers were set back by last night's rainout. They plan to use Mickey Lolich (13-13) tomorrow but Sunday's choice is unknown. They probably would have started Spina, who was scheduled to go last night, with only two days of rest but the rainout leaves Spina with only one day between games.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Sooke-Secretary Island-Becher Bay waters are still holding the Vancouver Island limelight for salmon fishing, although they are now sharing it with Alberni Inlet and to a lesser extent east coast coho waters, including Saanich Inlet, Cowichan Bay and Qualicum-Deep Bay area.

In the Sooke area, there are still a few pinks around, but coho fishing has held the main interest and there have been enough coho around that some sports anglers have been slipping the hook on the pinks and fishing for a coho limit.

Those who got out at the crack of dawn Sunday got fish if they hit the right spots at the right time, but by mid-morning it became so rough it was impossible to fish in small boats. Some anglers may have been fishing too close to shore. We flew over the Victoria waterfront-Sooke waters on Monday and noted the feeding gulls half to three-quarters of a mile from shore.

Scotty Russell, his son, Jim, and George Ayott found the coho half a mile out from Becher Bay Monday and caught them with one pound and 12 ounces of weight on 120 feet of line and Minnow Tearer. Sid Spooner used pliers and 120 feet of line. But limit catches of coho have also been coming from Becher Bay waters between Allbridge Point and Beechey Head on minnows, herring strip and Flashbills, with six to 12 ounces of weight.

One angler even caught his coho bucktailing on the surface.

Reports from the Juan de Fuca net line indicates the netters are still getting pretty good coho returns, up to 75 coho a night for the gillnetters, which should mean fair fishing for sports anglers for the next week or two at least. Netting days have been cut to three a week, which seems to allow some coho to get through unmolested.

Some coho are showing in Pedder Bay and a buildup may be starting, but fishing there has been on the slow side. Victoria waterfront has also been slow.

Oak Bay fishing is starting to pick up with a few coho up to 9½ pounds being taken and winter springs showing at Fiddle Reef, Cattle Point, and The Gap.

The Sidney Island-Coal Island-Dock Island-Arbutus Island-Deep Cove waters are giving up some fair coho fishing, with plenty of action one day, and then a slump the next.

Green and white fly, no spinner, trolled fast in the wake of the boat, is one combination that has been working. The coho seem to be passing through these waters on their way to Saanich Inlet and Cowichan Bay. Experienced anglers have been able to follow the schools as they move.

There are coho in Saanich Inlet, but there seems to be no consistent pattern. Tide change have created most activity in the afternoon, but the flat, calm water hasn't been conducive for good bucktailing, reports Jim Gilbert. There have been lots of coho in Indian Bay and Tod Inlet gave up a few at the weekend, with flasher and fly, 35 feet of line and planer, or 100 feet of nylon line and eight ounces.

Quite a few jacksprings are being taken in Indian Bay, Tod Inlet, Willis Point waters on little spoons, Flashbills, minnows, six ounces of weight and 100 feet of nylon line.

There has been fair bucktailing in Stone House area. Coho that are building up in Finlayson Arm waiting for enough water to spawn in the Goldstream are causing the fisheries department considerable concern.

Coho are starting to build up in Cowichan Bay, but the bite has been finicky. Flasher and fly and two ounces of weight has appeared best combination. A school of immature winter springs, up to 16 pounds, has moved into the Bay and Tommy Moss has been taking them on plugs, 75 feet of line and planer.

Lots of coho are showing in the Qualicum to Deep Bay area, off the mouths of the river, but sometimes they have been quite sluggish on the bite.

Alberni Inlet type fishing could be termed hot in all areas. Nahmint fishing boundary and boundary from Polly Point, off the city of Port Alberni, go on midnight Sunday. So does a closure on Nitinat River salmon fishing, to conserve spring salmon.

Logging roads will again be closed to loggers this weekend and we believe it is just simple courtesy on the part of hunters to keep out of the woods in this dry weather. Logging companies have been pretty good in allowing recreational access, so now they are in trouble with fires give them a chance. One fire in Cowichan Lake area this week was blamed on hunters.

Sooke Rod and Gun Club is collecting deer hides this year and these may be left at Fred Henry's Shell Service, on the West Coast Road, adjacent to the Sooke fishing wharf. Victoria Fish and Game Club hide collecting point is again at Westview Service, corner of Tillicum and Trans-Canada.

Meanest thief in Victoria must be the one who stole 20-year-old Ronald Smith's moose horns, from the first moose he ever shot, which was on a Watson Lake hunting trip this month.

Bud Dunnett, who often is mentioned in this column, and writes the occasional fishing story for The Islander, will be conducting freshwater fishing night school classes this year on Monday nights, from Oct. 2 to December. There is still room in the classes.

Big Stuke Finds Welcome, Vancouver Ready This Time

By AL EATON

VANCOUVER (CP) — Annis Stukus has returned to the town that hanged him in effigy 12 years ago. What's more, the welcome mat was out.

Stuke was invited to leave in 1955 for his failure to produce a winning football club as coach of British Columbia Lions. It wasn't unanimous. There were many who were sorry to see him go because he had done a fantastic promotion job.

FOUR-YEAR CONTRACT

Now he has been welcomed back as the man who can revive hockey and lure the fans into Vancouver's new $6,000,000 arena to watch Vancouver Canucks. He has a four-year agreement as general manager of the Western Hockey League team. The hope is that he'll pilot the Canucks into the National Hockey League some day.

On his first sojourn to the West Coast, in 1953, the Lithuanian manager and coach of the Lions but couldn't get them into the Western playoffs.

What he did do was talk, sleep and eat football. And he brought the fans into Empire Stadium, building the foundation for the most successful football franchise — in terms of attendance — in Canada.

Stuke admits that when he left his Toronto sportswriting job, following an illustrious football career, to come west and promote football he had a few things going for him.

THING TO DO

The city had a ready-made market in transplanted Prairie and eastern residents who had seen pro football and wanted to see more. And Vancouver itself wanted to be part of the national sports scene.

There was a brand new stadium left from the 1954 British Empire Games. And the public was financially involved with the team — it was publicly-owned, non-profit and supported by $20 memberships.

Stuke organized a quarterback club and conducted football clinics for housewives. Soon almost everyone in Vancouver was talking football. Attendance at games became the thing to do.

When performance on the field failed to match fan enthusiasm, the Lions got rid of Stukus and he made his way back to a sportswriting and announcing job in Toronto by way of Edmonton Eskimos.

Some of the circumstances are the same this time around. Stuke will be promoting hockey in a new arena. And he is just as enthusiastic as he was about football.

"Even though I didn't play professionally, I was always close to the game, and my first reporting job was on the hockey beat."

The club is privately owned and it's minor league, lacking the national press, radio and TV exposure of pro football, but Stukus says he has no fears.

TRADITION HELPS

"Hockey has always been the feature sport in Vancouver, dating back to the old days when they put more than 10,000 people in the Denman Arena and the National Hockey League included clubs in Vancouver and Victoria."

Football had to be sold as "the thing to do" but hockey is just a case of reminding the people that Vancouver has always been a hockey town, he insists.

In the old, drafty Vancouver Forum the Canucks averaged about 3,000 fans a game last season. "And that's in an arena where my wife ripped her nylons and soiled a good dress and refused to go back."

PLUSH NEW RINK

The new arena, with 12,000 comfortable seats and an unobstructed view from every one of them, is the key to getting an NHL franchise, Stukus says.

He expects the club to make money in the new building this season and reinvest much of it in new player personnel so that when the time comes to move to the NHL it will have the nucleus of a strong team.

"We've got about three years to get ready for expansion. In the meantime we will operate a major league club in a minor league."

Defending Champs Win Girls' Volleyball Opener

Three games in both the "A" and "B" divisions opened the High School Girls' Volleyball League yesterday afternoon.

Last season's champions, Victoria High, trounced Mount Douglas, 15-2, 15-13 at Vic High.

In other "A" division games, host Claremont beat Mount View, 15-5, 15-12 and visiting Oak Bay defeated Esquimalt, 15-11, 15-4.

Victoria High, Claremont, and Oak Bay also won in the "B" division.

Victoria High quickly demolished Mount Douglas to win, 15-4, 15-13. Claremont won over Mount View, 15-3, 15-11, and it took Oak Bay three games to overcome Esquimalt, 11-15, 15-13, 15-9.

Next games will be played on Wednesday, Oct. 4. Mount View will be hosting Victoria High. Oak Bay will be at Mt. Douglas and Claremont will be hosting Esquimalt.

He expects the club to make money in the new building this season and reinvest much of it in new player personnel so that when the time comes to move to the NHL it will have the nucleus of a strong team.

"We've got about three years to get ready for expansion. In the meantime we will operate a major league club in a minor league."

Part of Texas Designated Disaster Area by Johnson

HARLINGEN, Tex. (Reuters) — President Johnson designated 24 counties in southern Texas a disaster area Thursday night because of destruction resulting from record floods in the wake of Hurricane Beulah.

The president announced the declaration after a 5-hour tour by bus and helicopter of inundated areas in the Rio Grande valley.

He said he was releasing $2,500,000 in federal funds for the repair of roads, public buildings and other public facilities affected by the floods.

NEAR FUTURE

It was estimated that about $20,000,000 would be required in the near future, and more federal money would be released as soon as the extent of the damage and destruction is known.

The president was appalled by what he found in his native state where the scene in much of the 44,000 - square - mile region hit by the floods was one of unrelieved disaster and desolation.

From the air, parts of Harlingen itself, with a population of 41,000, resembled a lake, with water lapping rooftops and debris floating through the streets.

The president landed at an air strip in an industrial park, one of the few city areas spared from flooding. He im-

Businessman Says He Lost Shirt 'Or Part of It'

Victoria businessman Logan Mayhew told a preliminary hearing in central magistrate's court Thursday that he lost his "shirt or part of it" in the Chateau Victoria development.

Mr. Mayhew was testifying on the third day of the hearing of three counts of fraud laid against Leslie Millin of Vancouver.

Lloyd McKenzie and Kenneth Murphy appeared for the Crown and Thomas Braidwood of Vancouver for the defence.

Mr. McKenzie asked Mr. Mayhew how much money he had put into the development.

"Not including two shares that I paid too much for in late 1964, it would be about $48,000," Mr. Mayhew said. "The only thing I think I have as security is a 34 acres which is shown as being owned by the Beta organization."

Mr. Mayhew described the venture as having a "very high risk."

"I lost my shirt or part of it," he added.

Mr. Mayhew said he provided BHP Investments Ltd. with $30,000 on the assurance that a loan was forthcoming from the Laurentide company.

This money, he said, was used to pay $17,000 to a Mr. Beeler for some accounts he said the firm owed him, $6,000 to another party, with the remainder going to satisfy urgent accounts.

Better Deal Assured

He said BHP Investments did not follow up on the Laurentide loan because Millin assured them a better deal could be arranged.

"When it became apparent other sources of funds were not forthcoming, we went to Laurentide and they weren't interested," Mr. Mayhew said. "At that point, my $30,000 was in serious jeopardy and we allowed Burrard (Mortgage) to foreclose on the Esquimalt Lagoon property."

Mr. Mayhew said the task of Millin's firm of Sheridan Management was to sell lifetime tenancies in the Chateau complex.

Sheridan Management was advanced $4,000 for a sales effort in June and July, 1965. After the campaign, Millin told the witness that one unit had been sold.

Mr. Mayhew also put up $10,000 for a 60-day option to purchase the lagoon property and receive an extension of the time with an additional $5,000 deposit. The option was not exercised.

"Things seemed to grind to a slow halt, with an increasing difficulty in getting any information from Mr. Millin," Mr. Mayhew said.

Mr. Mayhew said there was discussion among the Chateau companies about purchasing the Empress Hotel, but there was no interest in selling by the CPR.

Target Date Flexible

Questioned about starting dates for construction, Mr. Mayhew said: "The target date was flexible, in the sense that nothing could start until there was money, and there was no money."

To Mr. Braidwood, Mr. Mayhew said that it was not his view that the shares given to Sheridan Distributors (also called Sheridan Management during the hearing) were to sell to the public.

But Mr. Braidwood produced a contract between BHP Investments and Sheridan Distributors which stated that shares could be used in any way.

The hearing will continue Wednesday, when the Crown will produce what is expected to be its last witness.

Cicela Doughty, 3770 Fort, was fined $30 when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Her licence was suspended. She was charged after her car was found in a ditch on Cedar Hill Road, Aug. 1.

David Charette and Donald Gauthier, both of whom gave 42 San Jose as their address, were each sentenced to 18 months in jail for false pretences.

Charette pleaded guilty to two additional charges and Gauthier to three others Thursday. Last week they pleaded guilty to similar charges.

Four of Thursday's charges involved the purchase of goods from Woolco with worthless cheques and the subsequent return and refund of cash on the goods.

The additional charge on Gauthier was the purchase of a pair of woman's shoes with a worthless cheque.

Lynn Bailey, no fixed address, was sentenced to four months in jail when she pleaded guilty to vagrancy. She has been convicted of vagrancy six times since 1965, court was told.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Mrs. Bailey was seen crossing the Johnson Street bridge onto an adjoining field Wednesday afternoon with two male companions. She told police she had not been working, had 28 cents on her and gave conflicting addresses.

Stanley Robicheau, no fixed address, one of the two men, also pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was sentenced to one month in jail. He told police had been sleeping "in the grass."

Larry Leno, 65 Sims, was fined $100 for driving while under suspension.

Fined $35 each for careless driving: Daniel McClure of Cowichan Bay; Hugh Mortimer, 1040 Craigdarroch.

Fined $35 each for being minors in possession of liquor: Terrence Kelly, 3179 Alder; Allan Lanyon of Courtenay.

Thanksgiving Commemoration

Centennial Service in Arena

A Thanksgiving service commemorating the centennial of Confederation will be held in Memorial Arena at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8.

The presiding minister will be Dr. S. J. Parsons, assisted by representatives of all faiths. Opening and closing music will be provided by the Salvation Army Citadel band.

The lesson will be read by B.C. Centennial Committee chairman L. J. Wallace, with Pacific Maritime Command Chaplain A. G. Faraday preaching the sermon.

Civic officials, representatives of the bar, university, and government, Boy Scout parties, Guides, Brownies, Scouts, Cubs and ethnic groups will take part in a procession. Helen and Henry Hunt will represent native Indian tribes.

The service is sponsored by the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee with the co-operation of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

Ex-Chief Rites Saturday All-About Personnel

Funeral will be held Saturday for Romaine James, who served for six years as chief of the Cole Bay Indian reserve.

He died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday morning at the age of 44. Mr. James resigned as chief last February because of a heart ailment.

He was born in Crofton and had lived on the North Saanich reserve for 32 years.

Mr. James is survived by his wife, Philomena, four daughters, three sons and two stepchildren. Four of the children are at home.

Prayers will be offered at the James residence, 970 Paquachin Road, at 8 p.m. today, and the funeral will be from Our Lady of the Assumption Church at 10 a.m. Saturday with Rev. William Mudge officiating.

The convention opened in Vancouver Sunday and moves here for the final two days of meetings.

The association represents officers of local, state and provincial, and federal governments on both sides of the border.

Student Voters Helped

University of Victoria students, eligible to vote in Victoria and Saanich municipal elections in December, will be able to register on campus this year.

Alma Mater Society president Dave McLean announced that special registration booths would be set up today in connection with Clubs' Day.

Victoria voters can register between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Saanich voters are limited to two hours, between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m.

CANDIDATE

The booths will be set up at the Student Union Building and Mr. McLean urged all eligible students to register. He said that if a good number of students register, there would be "a legitimate case for running a candidate in the upcoming elections."

Those voters who miss registering at the university today, and students from Oak Bay or Esquimalt who will not participate in the campus registration, have been urged to register at their municipal halls before the deadline at 5 p.m. Saturday, Mr. McLean said.

Mr. McLean said the registration drive is aimed at third and fourth-year students.

"We have an obligation as members of the community to vote. If we're registered we're not just students, we're citizens taking an interest in civic politics. This gives us a legitimate reason to look at campaign issues and take a position with regard to school board elections and education."

INVOLVEMENT

He said that during the summer students became aware that municipal councils were opposed to many of their views. Students became upset and frustrated about issues that arose because they felt they couldn't do anything.

The registration drive is designed to get such students actively involved in the government of the municipalities, he added.

Expert Will Inspect Canadian Seal Hunt

HALIFAX (CP)—A spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals said Thursday a group of West German fur dealers has agreed to finance the sending of a veterinary pathologist to Canada next year to witness the annual seal hunt off the east coast.

The SPCA official said the agreement was reached after the fur dealers brought legal action against Dr. Bernhard Grzimek of Frankfurt, a determined opponent of alleged cruelty in seal hunting who has campaigned against the Canadian hunt on his weekly television program in West Germany.

The fur dealers got an injunction against the program.

Loophole in Immigration Act

Deportation Order Quashed

A convicted Chinese drug addict has evaded deportation migration Act, temporarily at least because of In Victoria's Supreme Court.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST

September 29, 1967

There is a report afloat that Mr. Begbie has resigned or that he is about to do so. At any rate after what transpired at the mines with reference to the Grouse Creek case, he can never again sit upon the Supreme Court bench in that office.

Mr. Marsh announces a performance at the theatre on Wednesday next under the patronage of Admiral Hastings and officers of H.M. Fleet. The entertainment will be varied and attractive.

Four Fellow-Ten had a bankrupt named Sorrel before the court at New Westminster on Thursday and Friday last, when the following formidable array of judges sat upon his case: Judge Begbie; C. J. Prichard, Esq., J.P.; W. J. Armstrong, Esq., J.P.; and A. T. Bushby, Esq., J.P. The order that Sorrel had to undergo ought to be enough to prevent another case of the kind occurring in the district.

Victoria Approves New-Street Plans

Victoria city council Thursday approved the replanning of streets and lots between Douglas and Rose Streets and south of Finlayson.

The changes, which will see a new street built between Rose and Douglas, were recommended by the Victoria Advisory Planning Commission.

The reason for the proposal is to help traffic circulation and make access more convenient.

TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

A report from the department of community development stated that although a disproportionately high area of land was committed to road allowance, traffic circulation was poor and access inconvenient.

Under the plan, the upper section of Quesnel Street would be eliminated, while Spruce and Larch Streets would be shortened.

They would connect with a new street built between Rose and Douglas, curving northward to Finlayson.

MOSTLY AFFECTED

Lots in the area would be redistributed, with property on the west side of Rose Street being mostly affected.

Petitions and statements were also heard by council, objecting to a service station being built on the corner of Howard and Bay Streets.

Percy Thurlow, 1041 St. Charles Street, appealed for reconsideration of the planning chambers, Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton last week quashed deportation proceedings against Jang Sue Yee, also known as Tommy Dong.

Jang is now serving a six-year term following his sentencing in Vancouver Nov. 24, 1964, on a charge of selling heroin. He is not a Canadian citizen.

ORDER QUASHED

In November, 1965, he was ordered deported after an inquiry by Victoria immigration officer R. M. Malcolm.

Following a hearing, Mr. Justice Wootton quashed the deportation order in a judgment handed down Sept. 22.

The justice noted that Jang was convicted in 1964 under a section of the Narcotic Control Act. This was the basis of his deportation order under the Immigration Act.

But the wording of the Immigration Act is out of date. It refers to conviction under the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, which was repealed and replaced by the Narcotic Control Act in 1961.

CEASED TO EXIST

Mr. Justice Wootton said the deportation order was based on legislation which had ceased to exist.

He referred to "the confusing state of legislation" involved in the case, and added that "doubt should be resolved in favor of the applicant."

OLD AND NEW

Alan Macfarlane was counsel for the department of manpower and immigration. He based his case for deportation on a section of the Interpretation Act.

Mr. Macfarlane suggested that section 20 (b) of the act was a "bridge" linking the old and new narcotic legislation. Jang's counsel was Kenneth C. Murphy.

Mr. Macfarlane said Thursday: "An appeal is being considered. I have asked the department to give me instructions."

Mr. Justice Wootton's decision will create a precedent unless it is overruled in the B.C. Court of Appeal.

One Victoria lawyer said Thursday that if the judgment stood, Ottawa would have to amend the Immigration Act.

Gallery Spirit High

Largest bronze sculpture in Canada will be on view today at Art Gallery of Greater Victoria. The 17-foot-high, two-ton work is by local artist Elsa Mayhew. Entitled Coast Spirit, it has been on display for summer in Vancouver. It was made from foam plastic and then cast in bronze by Oregon craftsmen. Colin Graham, gallery director, commented: "We have it on indefinite loan but it's so heavy and hard to move I hope we get to keep it. It's beginning to get a tinge of the delightful green patina."

National Hero Out of Character?

Book Burns 'The Memory'

By BILL THOMAS

There will be some wry faces among the Scots when Burns Night rolls around next time. City author Yvonne Helen Stevenson will get the blame for her book Burns and his Bonnie Jean, which goes on sale today.

Some will gag on their oatmeal and others gulp their haggis when they read what Miss Stevenson describes as "a book that's a bit strong for persons and the clergy in general."

The book, published by Gray Campbell of Sidney, is the result of 10 years of research both here and in Scotland.

Real Man

Miss Stevenson, a great-granddaughter of Bonnie Jean Armour, has gone to great lengths to show Burns as he was in fact—a poor man but given to high living and promiscuity.

The author insists that "Burns' love of women was a wholesome country thing that was fine in its environment before the church started this one-man-and-one-woman thing."

Impetus to show that her ancestor was Burns' true love came from seeing a statue in Beacon Hill Park that shows Burns and Highland Mary Campbell.

Thrice Wed

Miss Stevenson shows that Burns married Bonnie Jean three times, first in a common-law relationship that satisfied Scots law, then before a justice of the peace, and finally in a kirk. He got Bonnie Jean pregnant to start the whole cycle off.

The passing of the years has not in any way dimmed the bitter Burns image, as far as Bonnie Jean's family is concerned.

Miss Stevenson got it first-

Burns

hand in Scotland. "My old aunts still refuse to have a book of his poems in the house, let alone a print or picture. Yet he was the one who made them famous."

One of Many

"Highland Mary was just one of his many passing fancies, but he was married to Jean for 10 years until they soured the marriage."

The Burns Night image of a national hero is quite out of character with Miss Stevenson's findings. Burns was a life-loving libertine. He adored women, all women. His poems prove it, and no amount of sanctimonious drivel can disprove what he has said about himself in his works. It's in the book.

Perhaps there is room for more books about the great Robert and his loves. His poems indicate a great many. Here are a few samples:

Bonnie Lesley—"To see her is to love her/And love but her forever/For Nature made her what she is/And ne'er made another!"

Highland Mary—"The golden hours on angel wings/Flew o'er me and my dearie; For dear to me as light and life/Was my sweet Highland Mary."

Miss Stevenson's ancestor Bonnie Jean got these lines—"She is a winsome wee thing/She is a bonnie wee thing/She is a loesome wee thing/This sweet wee wife o' mine."

This book may spark a few feuds in the glen.

Last Word

For those in a mood to pass judgment, Burns as usual, has the last word:

"The minister kiss'd the fiddler's wife/An' couldna preach for thinkin' o't."

Sidney, North Saanich Merger

Councils Call November Poll

By JIM BRAHAN

Sidney and North Saanich ratepayers will vote in November on amalgamating the two communities, both councils decided unanimously Thursday night.

Both councils accepted an amalgamation report at a meeting chaired by Sidney Mayor Arthur Freeman, but neither council voiced opinion whether it was for or against the joining of the two districts.

"The joint meeting unanimously decided to put the question to the people in a referendum tentatively set for Nov. 7," Mayor Freeman said.

EXPLANATION

He also explained that a public meeting would be held in Sansha Hall, probably on Oct. 28, when the amalgamation issue would be outlined to the electorate.

The advantages of amalgamation according to the report are:

- Better administration.
- More economical administration.
- Better staffing of public works.
- Better planned and better paced commercial and industrial development.
- Common development of recreational facilities and other amenities.
- Substantial savings in capital work.
- A stronger voice in regional affairs.

The report sees the disadvantages of amalgamation as being "immediate, short-run, and financial."

Both, it says, are controlled by the provincial government.

POLICE COSTS

It notes that police costs for Sidney, as a town, are paid by the B.C. government. Amalgamated, the communities would constitute a municipal district, which would have to pay its own police costs. This disadvantage will last until 1973, it observes.

"At that time the population of Sidney will meet the statutory requirements for a city, and the police costs must be assumed in either case."

The report sees another disadvantage of amalgamation in that the total provincial per capita grant paid to the two communities would be reduced on amalgamation by reason of the grant structure.

REVIEW

"This disadvantage will continue, and will rise, but is more than offset by administrative savings," it points out.

"These policies," it continues, "are under continual review and may be changed. If they are changed, it is likely that the disadvantage to amalgamation will be reduced because the provincial government favors the amalgamation of the smaller municipalities."

Airborne Tender Went Wrong Way

Ross-Crest Construction Ltd. of North Surrey entered its sealed bid for building of Blanshard elementary school at what should have been the last minute Thursday.

The plane carrying the bid landed at Patricia Bay airport at 4 p.m.—just one hour before deadline. A taxi took the envelope and hurried to Craigdarroch Castle—but the school board offices aren't there any more. The cab rushed to the new Lansdowne Avenue offices, but by that time it was 20 minutes too late.

The school board voted not to open the late bid.

$493,000 Bid Wins School Job

A low bid of $493,112 for construction of Blanshard elementary school was accepted Thursday by the Greater Victoria School Board.

The tender, submitted by W. Campbell Ltd. of Victoria, was the lowest of six opened. It was accompanied by a bid of $15,759 for extras.

The school board had allocated $575,135 for construction of the school at Hillside and Blanshard. Plans call for an opening in September, 1968.

when it will replace old North Ward elementary. Six basic bids ranged as high as $545,000.

Unsuccessful bidders: Farmer Construction Ltd., $511,578; E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd., $523,683; Bird Construction Co. Ltd., $527,769; H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd., $514,000; Burns and Dutton (1962) Ltd., $545,000.

The school board's acceptance of the tender must be approved by the department of education.

Sooke Hoping For Showers

Showers predicted for today may ease an otherwise tense situation in the Sooke Hills, where a slash fire went out of control Wednesday.

A B.C. Forest Service spokesman said late reports Thursday indicated good progress in beating down the blaze, on privately owned logging company land. Close to 300 men, five water bombers and a fleet of tankers and bulldozers were engaged in the battle.

The fire at one time Thursday threatened the Victoria watershed, but the threat disappeared during the afternoon.

Continual dry weather and a temperature inversion, which keeps dry the higher areas where the fire is burning, are blamed for the present situation.

"There is practically no recovery at night," said the spokesman.

Normally fires become dampened down by cool air and mist and moisture during the night and calm down considerably.

"But it's hot up there at night," said the spokesman. To emphasize the gravity of the situation, he added there were 31 forest fires burning in the Vancouver Forest District alone—"and that's a lot of fires for this time of year."

Showers are predicted for all of Vancouver Island today.

Officer's Hand Cut in Scuffle

An Esquimalt police corporal received a cut hand and a 21-year-old man has been charged with assaulting a peace officer Thursday following an incident at the rear of 646 Admirals Road.

The man charged will appear in central magistrate's court at 10 a.m. today.

The incident took place when Corporal Kenneth Hatherley and Const. Gordon Jenkins approached a man to question him.

A knife was drawn and Corporal Hatherley received a cut knuckle on his left hand.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: What can a mother do when her pre-teen children repeat dirty words they hear from neighbors' kids? Our four-year-old has come home and said some words my husband never learned till he got into the Merchant Marines.

We have washed out the boy's mouth with soap, deprived him of dessert and told him he couldn't watch the Saturday TV nasty, but nothing helps. When he drops one dirty word, he picks up another. He doesn't know what the words mean and when he asks why they are bad we don't know what to tell him.

Please don't suggest that we keep him away from the neighbor's children. It is impossible. Thanks for any help you can give us. — TRYING TO RAISE 'EM RIGHT

Dear Trying: There is no way to prevent children from hearing undesirable language from other children. By the time a youngster gets into the 8th grade he will have heard every dirty word there is. Tell your child certain words are not to be used because they are gutter words. Be emphatic, but don't make such an issue of it that he will use the words as an attention-getting device.

When a child asks what certain words mean he should be told — and make sure that the acceptable words are substituted for the gutter words. In that way he will learn to express himself properly.

Dear Ann Landers: Now and then you print letters from people who have complaints connected with their jobs. I hope you will help me out by printing my letter. You will also be helping out hundreds of other "bag boys" who carry groceries to people's cars.

Every day I walk an extra 10 miles at least — up and down the parking lot, my arms loaded with canned goods, because so many goods can't remember where they parked their cars. Women are the worst. If they would just pay a little attention it would help us a whole lot. Please tell them. — FLAT FEET

Dear Feet: It would also help if the parking lots had some markers. A few posts with numbers or letters would do a world of good. How about it, grocers of America?

Dear Ann Landers: Two months ago a couple our age moved in next door. We had a lot in common — bowling, swimming, playing cards and yard work.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Neighbor telephoned to say her

Duncan Bride Chooses Gown of Silk Taffeta

St. John's Anglican Church, Duncan, was the scene of a recent double-ring ceremony when Ruth Lynn Chadwick, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Chadwick was united in marriage with Mr. Stanley James Homer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Homer, Father E. Gilbert officiated. Standards of white gladiolus and chrysanthemums arranged with turquoise carnations and ivy decorated the church and the theme of the reception was also in turquoise and white.

The petite, red-haired bride came down the aisle on the arm of her father to the music of Mr. C. A. Howard on the church organ. For her wedding she chose an empire gown of silk taffeta topped with a coat of train of Chantilly lace which was scalloped in front. Her chapel veil of French illusion net with matching headpiece was scalloped and delicately embroidered with silk. Three large white orchids rested on her white prayer book and her only jewelry was a gold cross, gift of the groom.

Miss Cathy Chadwick, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Kathy Todd, sister of the groom, and Suzette Smith were other senior attendants.

Miss Sherri Chadwick, cousin of the bride was junior bridesmaid, and Miss Jennifer Stephenson, flower girl.

All the senior attendants were dressed in sleeveless formal gowns of silk organza with a deep turquoise figure and a band of matching turquoise peau de sole at the empire waist. Their head pieces were of matching turquoise flowers and net. They carried turquoise carnation cascading bouquets. The dainty flower girl was dressed in deep turquoise peau de sole floor length gown with white lace top. She carried a silver basket of turquoise carnations.

Best man for his brother was Mr. Lawrence Homer of Edmonton and ushers were Mr. Wayne Robertson, Mesachie Lake, Mr. Roy Todd and Mr. David Chadwick, cousin of the bride.

The reception was held in the Crystal Room at the Troubadour Hotel. The bride's table was centred with white roses and white heather and the wedding cake was iced in the style of a church and rested upon an heirloom cloth from the Homer family. The Rev. Fr. R. F. Stephenson was unable to attend, but his toast to the bride was read by Mr. R. T. Harkins, uncle of the bride.

For their honeymoon trip to Banff and Radium Hot Springs, the bride chose a muted print of turquoise and yellow silk sheath, topped with a heavy Italian silk slim turquoise coat with a Breton Italian silk hat to match.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Kawn, Edmonton, from Vancouver were the bride's grandmother Mrs. Edith Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Archer, with Diane and Valerie, Mrs. Maud Weltman, Mr. Robert Baldwin; Mr. and Mrs. James Evans, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. H. Streich, Ladner; Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin and Heather, Victoria; from West Vancouver were Mr. and Mrs. D. Humphreys, Mrs. C. Buckler, Mr. and Mrs. I. Dobbin and John and Mr. and Mrs. J. McAnish.

Newlyweds Plan Home On Salt Spring Island

Ganges United Church was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when Linda Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Archer and Mr. Gordon Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Simpson, West Vancouver were united in marriage.

Rev. E. W. MacQuarrie officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. MacQuarrie was organist and played the traditional wedding music.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the fair haired bride was lovely in her floor-length wedding gown of ivory satin crepe fashioned on princess lines with fitted bodice of Alecon lace. The cathedral train bordered with matching lace fell gracefully from her shoulders and her tiered silk tulle veil was held in place by two dainty white satin roses. The bride carried a nosegay of red Sweetheart roses. Her only jewelry was pearl studded earrings.

The maid of honor, Miss Elspeth Evans of Richmond, B.C., was in a floorlength primrose silk brocade gown fashioned in empire style. Bridesmaids Miss Carol Simpson, sister of the groom, Miss Ainslee MacQuarrie, and Miss Patricia Archer, sister of the bride, wore apple green silk brocade gowns fashioned in the same style as the maid of honor. They wore matching satin bows with whimsy veils and carried cascade bouquets of white shasta chrysanthemums.

Best man was Mr. John Dobbin, West Vancouver, and ushers were Mr. Mervin Walde and Mr. Keith Simpson, brother of the groom.

The reception was held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall which was artistically decorated in autumn tinted flowers.

The bride's table was centred with the three-tiered wedding cake decorated with white rose buds which was made by the bride's mother.

The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Mr. Roy Archer, Vancouver.

For their honeymoon which will be spent in the interior of B.C. the bride wore an Italian-knit two-piece beige suit with harvest brown suede beret and matching accessories. The gift of the groom to his bride was a gold wristwatch. On return Mr. and Mrs. Simpson will make their home on Salt Spring Island.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Kawn, Edmonton, from Vancouver were the bride's grandmother Mrs. Edith Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Archer, with Diane and Valerie, Mrs. Maud Weltman, Mr. Robert Baldwin; Mr. and Mrs. James Evans, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. H. Streich, Ladner; Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin and Heather, Victoria; from West Vancouver were Mr. and Mrs. D. Humphreys, Mrs. C. Buckler, Mr. and Mrs. I. Dobbin and John and Mr. and Mrs. J. McAnish.

Hormones Limited Help

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) —Fertility hormones can only help a small percentage of childless women to produce families, a Swedish university professor told the World Congress of Gynecologists and Obstetricians here this week.

Prof. Carl Gemzell of Uppsala University said that 10 to 15 per cent of women of child-bearing age were incapable of conceiving children.

Only five to 10 per cent of these could be treated with the so-called "wonder hormone" gonadotrophin which his research team has pioneered.

Gonadotrophin could only be used to overcome sterility caused by deficiencies of the pituitary gland. Most cases of sterility were caused by other reasons, including congenital malformities and after-effects of infectious diseases. Such women needed other treatment.

Gemzell said 79 of 194 infertile women treated during a seven-year period in Sweden had become pregnant. But 22 lost their babies before birth.

Of those who gave birth, 42 per cent of the women had twins or other multiple births, he said. One had quadruplets and one quintuplets.

Newlyweds To Live In Alberni

Now on a honeymoon in Eastern Canada are Robert James Darby and his bride, the former Phyllis Elaine French, who were married in the Church of Our Lord, Bishop D. A. G. Rankin officiated at the evening ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Merritt H. French of Calgary and Victoria, and the groom is the son of Mrs. S. Darby of Alberni and the late Mr. Darby.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William Gies French, the bride wore a full-length Empire gown of white brocade with floating panel on train. Her shoulder-length veil misted from a white satin rose in her hair, and she carried a cascade of pink roses with white stephanotis.

Matron of honor for her sister-in-law was Mrs. Elaine French, who wore an Empire gown in aquamarine chiffon with accessories in tone. Her cascade bouquet was of white and yellow daisy mums.

Mr. Roy Bridger of Victoria was best man, and ushers were Mr. William Lane and Mr. Leo Jager. Mr. Frank (Tor) Miller proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in Holyrood House.

As the couple left later on their wedding trip the bride wore a champagne pink knit suit with navy blue accessories and white feathered mums on corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. French plan to live in Alberni.

Earthy Poetry Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Dorothy Livesay, twice winner of the Governor General's Award for poetry, says she finds it strange when people criticize the earthy quality of some of her poetry.

"Some of my friends say: 'Dorothy, you shouldn't use such words and write such things.' But I find this strange thinking. 'I was married, bore two children. I know what it is to experience life.'"

An example of the earthy passion Miss Livesay uses in her writing can be found in her latest book, The Unquiet Bed.

Miss Livesay, who was married to D. C. Macnair, said her daughter, Marcia, a Toronto librarian, approves of the book.

"She is able to look at the poetry from a literary view. I value her criticism very much. But my son Peter is an anthropologist and is not too happy about some of my writing."

"Maybe he will feel better when he hears what my friends are saying about my becoming a grandmother. 'Dorothy is going to spend her time writing poems about her first grandson.'"

Miss Livesay, now 58, won the Governor-General's Award for Poetry in 1944 and 1947, the first time she also captured the father, J. F. B. Livesay, second general manager of The Canadian Press, and her mother, Florence Randal Livesay, were writers.

Miss Livesay went to England after the Second World War to report on post-war rehabilitation for a Toronto newspaper, and was program assistant with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in Paris.

Paris is a city she knew from having studied at the Sorbonne in 1932, after taking her BA at the University of Toronto.

She has been a social worker as well as a poet and journalist. She graduated in social science from U. of T. in 1934.

Miss Livesay, now 58, won the Governor-General's Award for Poetry in 1944 and 1947, the first time she also captured the Loren Pierce Gold Medal of the Royal Society of Canada for literature.

She describes her poetry as an outgrowth of the Chinese and Japanese styles she studied as a teenager in Winnipeg. Her rapport with the younger generation attracts students to her poetry readings at UNB.

"During my holidays I worked for the Winnipeg Tribune but I got my feet wet in the newspaper work in Toronto."

"One of my first assignments was to interview a very reluctant Randolph Churchill. I sent him a little note explaining that I was a very green reporter and I needed the story to hold my job."

"I got the interview, but he didn't say anything worthwhile."

Dream of Nursery School Comes True in Ontario

MARKHAM, Ont. (CP) — Peter Gaetens spends his days cooking, playing with and making toys for 30 young children.

For Mr. Gaetens, who came here from Germany 15 years ago, it's all part of a day's work in running a nursery school.

Peter first started to dream about his own nursery school when his daughter Doris, now 14, was placed in one and then moved from one to another in a series of moves because of unsatisfactory conditions.

Five years ago, when Mr. Gaetens inherited some money from his father, he decided to set up his own school and run it the way he wanted it and felt that the children would like it. Peter bought two acres of land near Markham, 20 miles northeast of Toronto, and began designing a combination nursery school-home.

"Too many nursery schools are run in church basements or converted homes," he said in an interview. "I wanted my place to have all the best things for the children."

The Trillium nursery school consists of a 30-by-70-foot room with accommodation for 60 children. On the top floor is a four-bedroom home for a family. In the basement are a gymnasium, workshop and kindergarten for the children.

A sundeck runs along one side of the house and the spacious lawn is filled with play equipment.

Because Peter is not a trained teacher, he has two nursery school instructors running the school for him with the help of two other women.

Peter does the paperwork, fixes mid-day snacks for the children, shops for and prepares a hot noon meal and drives some of the children to and from school.

He reserves time each day to view.

play with the children and to take them on excursions.

"The father image" is good for children from broken homes with a working mother, he says.

Hestia Fletcher of the Ontario welfare department says few men are licensed for the nursery school business, because "this field is not a money-making one. . . . We're cautious about men because they look at it from a business point of view."

Licensed Lunatics In Traffic Game

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

The Consumers Association of Canada is suggesting in Ottawa that a federal traffic accident research centre be established to determine the causes of car accidents.

Would you believe crazy drivers?

I see that Dr. Gordon Shrum has come up with a solution of the total abolishment of the motor car, which seems as good an answer to the problem as any.

Meantime, until the predicted demise of the car in the 21st century, Canada is not the only country with concerned citizens. England, France and Italy are in shock about the traffic toll.

Having driven, reluctantly, in these countries during the past year, I have come to some conclusions:

1. Ninety per cent of English drivers have recently escaped from some gigantic lunatic asylum.

2. Ninety-five per cent of French drivers have been issued driving licences by mistake, probably a massive clerical error.

3. Ninety-nine per cent of Italian drivers have a strong death wish.

4. Driving in Victoria is positively relaxing by comparison.

The most common reaction for North Americans, especially women, arriving in Europe, is a firm decision never to drive — fear of freeways, but cowardice to the core on the motorways and autoroutes, and in crowded English towns with streets so narrow and pedestrians so unpredictable.

Two hours after arriving in England we saw two accidents within one block of High Street. And to add to the jangled nerves we lived on one of the main roads into Oxford, with the frequent roar of ambulances hooting their way along to pick up the pieces after misunderstandings at the bypass roundabout.

These misunderstandings are frequent, as the law of right-of-way is obscure for people who persist in keeping left. Letters to The Times discourse at length on the proper procedure for negotiating the ubiquitous roundabouts, but in practice the main object is still to fight your way through, then hash on in regardless.

In France we lived on a hill above the main road between Nice and Monte Carlo, where the air was filled with such constant squealing of tires and hooting of horns as a dangerous hill curving down into the town, we began to wonder if all the drivers were practising for the Monte Carlo rally. It happened all night, and also rather a lot at three in the afternoon, just after the French lunch hour.

Speaking of the French lunch hour, which lasts at least two hours, we read with interest a series of articles by a conscientious French journalist who had been making a study of the causes of automobile accidents. He, like the CAC, was concerned.

But when it came to proposed legislation about breathalyzer tests, this objective reporter allowed his indignation to show through.

He had discovered that one would be considered, drunk, sloshed, loopy, trois volles au vent after lunch if one had imbibed merely two aperitifs, a litre of wine and a cognac — simply the normal alcoholic intake of every right-thinking Frenchman.

nonchalance; even, occasionally, when I didn't like the look of the other guy coming at me at the intersection, with a certain amount of bravado.

But our friend in Italy had, I'm afraid, gone too far. He had been driving my husband around to laboratories for several days, and John had been fairly stoic about it. But when I picked him up as we were leaving, John said "Dear, your driving is very relaxing."

A wife doesn't often get a compliment like that from a husband.

My last conclusion is: WOMEN ARE SAFER DRIVERS THAN MEN (if only because they're cowards.)

The speed is even greater, but the driving stylistically excellent. Italians can judge to a fraction of an inch how to overtake in the face of oncoming traffic and pull in smartly across your bow. It is a great game, especially as Italian pedestrians, who are also inclined to be suicidal, tend to prefer to walk in the middle of the road.

In Italy we stayed with a Victoria scientist and his wife who are stationed at Lerici for three years, and discussed European driving habits with them. Like me, Evelyn had determined never to take to the roads, but had to face up to it eventually or be marooned.

Erwin, on the other hand, had solved the problem of driving in Italy with wonderful scientific logic. He now drives Italian style himself.

"It's marvellous," he exults. "You just do it their way. You do things you'd be fined for 67 times a day in Victoria. You take out all your hostilities."

Up to a point, this is fine. I too, reached the point of negotiating the hills and twists of our village and the hairpin bends of the Grande Corniche with a surprising degree of

B.C. History Published

Eight Had One Aim

The story of B.C.'s entry into Confederation has been told in a new book written by eight alumni of the University of Victoria.

Published in Victoria by Morris Printing, British Columbia and Confederation will go on sale soon.

The 250-page, hard-cover volume is a collection of eight essays by former UVic history students. It carries an introduction by editor Dr. George Shelton of the university's history department.

The contributors have one thing in common, says Dr. Shelton in the preface: "An abiding interest in British Columbia and its history."

British Columbia did not enter Confederation until 1871, but the contributors felt that 1967 was an appropriate year for publication of the volume, Dr. Shelton said Wednesday.

The project originated with an idea of Professor Sydney Pettit, head of the UVic history department, said Dr. Shelton.

The book is dedicated to Prof. Pettit, described as "Teacher, historian and good friend."

"We thought it would be a credit to Victoria College and the university to have it written by former students," Dr. Shelton commented. None of the eight contributors is a professional historian.

It took three years to organize, research, write and print the book, which will sell for $7.50.

The contributors:

Olive Fairholm, 1945 Joan Crescent, a library assistant at the University of Victoria library.

Stella Higgins, 788 Transat, graduate student and teaching assistant at the university.

H. Robert Kendrick, 757 Transat, head of the English department at Oak Bay senior high school.

Derek Pettick, Alderley Road, Saanich, former and graduate student at the university.

Paul Phillips, Vancouver, research director of B.C. Federation of Labor.

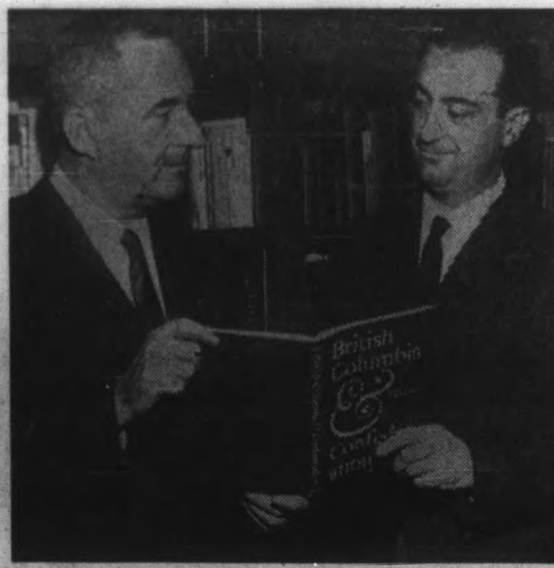

Susan Dickinson Scott, now living at Stewart, B.C.

Brian R. D. Smith, 2720 Somass, Victoria lawyer.

Tim Trousdale, Ottawa, employed by the National Research Council.

Charles Morris, head of Morris printing, said Wednesday that B.C. and Confederation will be the subject of a display showing the step-by-step production of a book.

The display will be part of an exhibition of Canadian books at the McPherson Theatre Oct. 13 and 14, the centennial project of the Marionette Book Shop.

Library 10 Months Old But Expansion Near

The Sidney and North Saanich library was only opened for use last December, but expansion plans are already being made for the building.

Susan Thullier, librarian of the 10,000-book library, said Thursday no date has been set to start building new book shelves in the part of the building used for a lecture room, but more than likely it will be around the end of the year.

The branch is a part of the Vancouver Island Regional Library service and began operating in temporary quarters at Sidney in April, 1966, until the new building was constructed on Sanscha Hall property.

Exhibition Reminder Support Deserved

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

Attendance at the current exhibition at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria of rare and valuable Japanese art dating from the early 12th century to the end of the 14th has put the gallery, though one of the smaller ones, into the limelight of Canadian progress in display.

Many visitors have commented on the way in which this exhibition, Kamakura to Edo, has been handled and on the confidence in our director, shown by many leading art galleries of North America by arranging loans of some of their most valuable items.

Cleveland Museum of Art, Los Angeles County Museum of Art, Portland Art Museum, Royal Ontario Museum, Seattle Art Museum, Stanford University Museum and William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Art have all been generous with their help.

Long Planning
Colin Graham has been working on plans for arranging and displaying it adequately for the best part of a year. A project like this does not just happen.

I sometimes wonder if our city council has the remotest idea of what the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria means to the city, to our children growing up under its influence, to young and old alike.

Can one imagine what it would be like if, for lack of funds, the Art Gallery could no longer function?

It is only those behind the scenes who are aware of the dedication of the gallery staff, how they drive themselves to the limit when anything like this big show of Oriental artifacts has to be displayed.

Not Just Hung

We walk in and view the exhibitions, sometimes in a casual way, but do we think of the experience that is required to hang an exhibition of drawings or paintings? They are not just put up on the walls. They have to be considered for the way in which they play against each other, how each can be shown to best advantage and yet make a unity.

Recently I have heard that the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria is now considered to be a leader in display for all Canada.

Canada Council has given valuable help over the years and private donations have been more than generous, but what is the City of Victoria doing?

Taxes take back practically all of the grant made to the Art Gallery each year. Surely there is something wrong with this. Voluntary help has been the mainstay of the gallery since its earliest days, there is a wonderful women's committee always busy on some project to raise the necessary money, but should it have to depend on this?

I have followed the development and struggles of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria since its beginnings in a motor sales room on Yates Street, so I feel I can claim to know what I am talking about, though I am aware I should not criticize our city council for its passive attitude toward the fine arts.

Fowl Play Stops

MONTREAL (CP) — Two young men will face trial Oct. 4 on a charge of illegally hunting ducks on the Expo 67 site Wednesday with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Arraigned Wednesday were Jean Saucet, 22, and Bernard Fouchet, 22.

Constable Jean Belanger testified he arrested the pair on the bank of the St. Lawrence River behind the Japanese Pavilion. As the whole Expo area is part of a federal government bird sanctuary, where the carrying of weapons is prohibited, he said he arrested the pair when he saw Saucet had a 12-gauge shotgun in his possession, apparently for the purpose of hunting duck which abound in the area.

Profession Hard On Scalp

LONDON (AP) — Male nurse Antonio Pomares really got involved in a hair-raising controversy and in vain appealed to the government for help.

Antonio is a young Spaniard with high hopes of a successful medical career.

He got a job as an assistant male nurse at a Surrey psychiatric hospital and was immediately ordered: "Get rid of that beard. And cut your hair."

He did and everything seemed going along fine. Then Antonio, 26, became interested in Buddhism and shaved his head.

"Get your hair back," ordered chief nurse Alfred Arrowsmith, Antonio went to a wig-maker.

The only snag: Wigs cost a minimum of £30 ($90) and Antonio makes only £5 8s 4d ($16.25) a week.

He appealed to Health Minister Kenneth Robinson for a ruling.

The ministry replied it was up to the hospital authorities. So Antonio has started letting his hair grow again to keep his job.

Chief nurse Arrowsmith was unrelenting in his order, explaining: "You don't expect eccentricities in a psychiatric hospital.... Patients should see only normal-looking men around them."

Antonio complained: "All I want is personal freedom."

GOLD RIVER - The company town came alive Wednesday and Thursday, with Danish officials jubilant at the visit of heir to the throne of Denmark, 27-year-old Princess Margrethe.

The charming royal figure Thursday opened the $60,000 pulp and paper mill, built by subsidiaries of the Danish holding company, East Asiatic Co. (Copenhagen) Ltd.

Weather was perfect for the ceremony, in which the princess' husband, Prince Hendrik, also participated.

The instant-town's population was boosted by more than 100 guests, visitors and officials.

Wednesday they toured the sawmill at the town and made a balance of the collective bargaining procedure, an officer without even the qualifications for a shop steward in one of our unions.

Don Connell, chairman of the district labor council, said democratic collective bargaining carried on by B.C. unions is "the best in the world."

He said the provincial government should aid and assist without interfering.

If Interest Drops, Buyer Stuck

New NHA Rate Potential Trap

An 8½-per-cent NHA mortgage interest rate could be a five-year millstone around the necks of home buyers if the government decides to lower the rate after a quarterly review, a Victoria realtor warned Thursday.

To Get 'Hell' Out of Her

Rector, Fiance Spanked Victim

TORONTO (CP)—A former member of St. Matthias' Anglican Church testified Thursday that Katherine Globe, 18, who died in the church rectory June 21, was spanked on several occasions by the rector and other members of the congregation to get the "hell" out of her.

Mrs. Dale Webb, 19, said at the inquest into the girl's death that Katherine was spanked twice by Canon Moore Smith, church rector, the day before she died and once by the assistant minister, Rev. Douglas Tisdale.

AN INVOCATION

Mrs. Webb recited an invocation she said was used as a ritual to banish devils: "I command in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ that all the hell and atmosphere within me be bound and chained by the Lord Jesus Christ and that it go straight where it can be dealt with."

On June 21, Mrs. Webb said the girl was slapped in the face by Canon Smith's wife, Violet, and spanked once again by Canon Smith.

BY FIANCE

Earlier, Mrs. Webb said, Katherine was spanked by David Smith, 26, her fiance and son of Canon Smith, and by her brother, Alex, 24, a second-year divinity student at the University of Toronto.

Mrs. Webb said she heard the girl moaning the day before her death and was told she was letting "hell" come through her and that she would have to get out of bed and move around and get the "hell" out by herself.

TWO DOORS

Mrs. Webb, who had a bedroom two doors from Katherine's, said there was a group of about 70 persons at the church who believed in devils and that they were led by Canon Smith, Mr. Tisdale and Mrs. Marjorie Rogers. Replying to a question from Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, Mrs. Webb testified that spankings had not happened before in the church group.

Katherine died on the same day she was scheduled to have an appointment with Dr. D. A. Halldenby, ear specialist at Toronto Western Hospital.

"That morning she got out of bed and opened her windows and was screaming terribly at the windows," Mrs. Webb said.

The government announced Wednesday the maximum interest rate for homeowner and rental-housing loans under the National Housing Act will be raised to 8½ per cent on Oct. 1.

IF IT DROPS . . .

Realtor L. E. Kirk said a borrower would have nothing to worry about if the interest rate remained steady or even went up, but if it dropped suddenly it would be a different story.

"That's the risk buyers of houses will have to run, because they will have to hold the same payments for five years before they can refinance," he said.

The five-year period is regulated under Canadian legislation, he explained.

Mr. Kirk said the new interest rate might attract more money into the mortgage market.

"Up to now, there has been very little available."

He said that with the increase, the life insurance companies might be drawn back into the mortgage field, and it could quite conceivably help with the housing shortage across the country.

NO HOUSES

"We have a housing shortage in Victoria. There are no houses to rent in the city. There are a few apartments to rent, but that's about all," he said.

Mr. Kirk said the interest rise was comparable to the rise in prices of other commodities.

"Some 20 years ago, it was 4½ per cent on an NHA mortgage."

He said the government's announcement came as a shock. "I hope it's just a phase we are going through," he said, adding that Canada's economy is really "wild" right now.

The contractors and carpentry workers view the interest hike as a blow to the building industry.

TELEGRAM SENT

John Schibill, vice-president of the B.C. Provincial Council of Carpenters said Thursday the council sent a telegram of protest to Prime Minister Pearson. It is also sending a letter to Labor Minister Nicholson demanding a second look at the rate.

James McLaren, president of the Victoria Home Builders Association, has called a directors' meeting for Monday night, to decide action on the interest rate.

Spring Use

Museum Opening In 1968

The new provincial museum, B.C.'s biggest and most important centennial project, won't be finished in 1967, Works Minister Chant said Thursday.

The structure, the first and most important phase of what was originally to have been a $6,500,000 museum-archives complex, will probably be ready for public viewing by the end of January.

HIGH COSTS

However, Mr. Chant indicated Thursday, it might take until next spring before the building was in full use.

The complex was to have been completed late this year, but sharply rising building costs throughout the province forced Premier Bennett to apply a freeze to non-essential provincial projects.

After several months' delay, the go-ahead was given on the actual museum, but the high-rise office block and archives building are still at the structural stage, with no immediate plans to proceed.

HOPE GONE

At the time construction was resumed on the museum, Mr. Chant said it was hoped to complete that portion of the complex late this year. However, he said Thursday, that hope has now disappeared and work will go on into 1968.

The minister also disclosed that plans to clean the outside of the legislative buildings to match the new stone facing on the completed museum had been abandoned because of high costs.

Tests showed that only wet sand blasting would do the job, and this would cost an estimated $1,500,000.

Education Support 'Lagging'

The B.C. Teachers' Federation released a report Thursday which says that B.C. government financial support of education is lagging behind actual costs.

The federation called on the government to revise its grant formula annually to ensure that grants are more in line with actual costs.

The report, "The Cost of Education—Who Pays and How Much?" was released in Vancouver.

Victoria teacher Norman K. Freeston, 3221 Woodburn, chairman of the federation's education B.C.'s system is a model for most other provincial governments.

However, grants to both municipal councils and school boards are too low to sustain the system, said Mr. Freeston.

The education program was revised in 1966, the first revision since 1961, he noted, and added public pressure to change the formula was mounting.

Garden Notes

By M. V. CHESNUT

Geraniums seem to have done exceptionally well this year, and I cannot recall any season in which the plants have grown so sturdily and bloomed so profusely. I imagine one reason for this exceptional performance is the sunny, hot, dry weather we have experienced; this must be very similar to the weather pattern in the geranium's native South Africa.

Another reason for the vigorous growth and lush bloom, though, is because we are getting better plants nowadays. It is a known fact that many of our older strains are infected with a virus that lowers their vitality and affects their ability to bloom without showing any obvious symptoms, and several big commercial propagators have directed their attention to the problem of turning out virus-free plants, using techniques developed in England for ridding chrysanthemum stocks of certain viruses. For the first time in many years, truly healthy geranium plants are appearing on the market.

Whatever the reason, geraniums in formal beds, in planters and window boxes, in hanging baskets and urns, have never looked more colorful. The problem now is how to bring these plants safely through the winter, for buying new plants every spring is an expensive business.

To use an Irish turn of speech, the best way to save your plants is to scrap them. Take cuttings from your old plants, then pull up the old ones and give them the old heave-ho. Grow the cuttings through the winter to make new plants for setting out next spring. Actually, such vigorous young plants are far superior to overwintered parent plants, which are almost invariably lanky, poorly formed, and with an over-age root system.

The best slips are of young but well-ripened shoots — firm, short-jointed growths detached from the parent stems — but at a pinch you can use almost any portion of the plant except very soft, flabby shoots with long bare intervals between leaves. Make your cut immediately below a leaf joint, three to five inches from the tip, and strip off all the leaves except those at the tip. Moisten the cut end, dip in Rootone or Seradix rooting powder, shake off any excess dust, and insert around the edge of a clay pot filled with equal parts peat moss and vermiculite.

You can get from three to seven slips in each pot, depending on its size, so this method doesn't take up a great deal of room. Keep the rooting mixture only just barely moist, never soggy wet, for geranium slips are extraordinarily prone to rot diseases.

Keep your pots of slips at ordinary room temperature and in a good light but out of direct sunshine until roots have formed, as indicated by new growth at the tips. Then move them to a sunny window of a VERY cool room, watering sparingly. This combination of bright sun, cool air, and dryish roots will slow down growth and make for a stocky, short-jointed, well-branched plant vastly superior for bedding purposes than skinnier, tall specimens pampered in warmth.

Where no heated greenhouse or frame is available, the limitation of this method is the shortage of sunny windowsill space in the average home. Because of this, I am often asked how geraniums can be stored in the basement in a dormant condition, like dahlias or cannas roots. This is possible with the parent plants if a very cool and humid storage place is available — a place where potatoes will store well all winter without either freezing or sprouting prematurely — although, as I said, the performance of these old plants is never as good as vigorous young slips.

I must make it very clear that there is no method, to my knowledge, whereby unrooted geranium slips can be stored safely through the winter. They MUST be rooted and kept growing, even though growth can be slowed down to a snail's pace.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Eddie Fisher Worried

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — A Los Angeles attorney has told Eddie Fisher, that he is still not free to marry Connie Stevens, not in this country, that is. Eddie, I hear, is worried about the effect on his career when a certain news event matures. All I can say is that even if he never collects what he insists Elizabeth Taylor owes him from the company they formed when they were married and living off the fat of the land in Rome, Eddie doesn't really have to worry about money. He's getting $20,000 a week at the Waldorf, his next stop in New York after the Palace. Miss Stevens is also in New York and they are still seeing each other, but some of the fire seems to have faded.

It's really amazing that the late popular actor, Basil Rathbone, left less than $10,000. The Rathbones spent more than this for just one of the parties when I first went to Hollywood. Perhaps that's why.

The return of the native — almost. Tony Perkins is buying a house in Hollywood, and he will commute between here and New York where he now owns a house in the East Twenties. Tony is currently starring for 20th Century-Fox and producer Larry Turman in Shane Let Him Continue, and will sign for two more with the studio. I remember when Tony was the barefoot boy of the Hollywood Hills. He won't be doing that any more. Every novelty shop from Hollywood to New York has been featuring a photo of Frank Sinatra with his two front teeth blacked out. Will he ever live it down?

Juliet Frowse will marry Eddie Gaspar in London soon after her Oct. 12 opening there in Sweet Charity. Choreographer Eddie has no objection to Juliet continuing with her career — her insistence on this cancelled out her engagement to Sinatra. How long ago that seems.

Melina Mercouri will only give interviews if she can tell you what she thinks of the present regime in Greece. When the coup was accomplished, Melina was so upset she couldn't give interviews at all. She is most annoyed with countrywoman Kalina Paxinos who continues to act for the National Theatre in Athens. "She took the easy way," said Melina scornfully.

Jean Arthur was walking on Broadway towards Lindy's, when two little boys in front of her tore off their jackets and began fighting. Jean (soon to be seen on stage in The Freaking Out of Stephanie Blake) really panicked. She stopped a man passing by and pleaded, "oh please stop them. He did. You can see from this that Jean of the fascinating cracked voice could never be witness to, say a murder, and do nothing about it.

Yesterday was Van Johnson's day. Following his rehearsal for the Dean Martin show, producer Gregg Harrison signed him for a second appearance; Danny Thomas stopped by and signed Van for one of his TV musical specials on the Rosini Twenties, plus another starring role in his dramatic anthology series. Van was great in his recent box office hit, Divorcee American Style.

Roman Polanski or rather Sharon Tate is telling friends that she and the piddish Polish director will marry in London in December. Well, they've been going together long enough to know whether they can be as happy married as single.

There's hope after all that Beryl Reid will repeat her stage role in the film version of The Killing of Sister George. There was talk that Bette Davis would have the tremendous role. I heard there was, however, a bit of coolness between Bette and George director Robert Aldrich, after they were involved with Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlie.

Robert has fought with many a star, but he never holds a grudge. If he chooses Beryl over Bette, it will be because she would be better in the part.

DR. STUART ROSENBERG Puts Teachers in Place

Equality Overdone

"Why do you want to enter this school?"

The aspiring university student fidgeted a moment before answering what seemed so foolish a question. "To study," he blurted out to his interviewer.

"But you can study at home, or in the library. Surely, you can study in other places besides school!"

"Yes," the bewildered student slowly replied, "but I would not be able to do this as effectively, elsewhere."

"And why not?"

"Because to study suggests an atmosphere, and a school has that."

"Do you know why a school has that atmosphere, young man? Only because it has teachers, some of whom are great men. The reason one should go to school to study, in case you have not realized this, is not merely to study. Rather it is to be in the company of good and great men who represent learning and thoughtfulness, and whose presence distinguishes that place from any other."

devotion to democracy which makes most students regard their teachers as their equals. And if a teacher "won't get down on his knees" to reach the lowest level, he's no pal, no friend — hence, no teacher!

True, democracy should suffer no frosty authoritarianism, allow no sanctimonious dictation from "on high." But authoritarianism is not the same as authority, nor should democracy be equated with vulgar mediocrity. There is still room for excellence — a respect for excellence — within the framework of social equality.

In our exaggerated reactions against "authority" we have, too often, enthroned ignorance and ordinariness as the new monarchs of our time. We have made believe, for so long, that children are the equals of parents, that teachers, too, "can rule only with the consent of the governed." At best, our teachers can only be "partners in inquiry" and no more. Their functions have been severely limited and defined by the immediate desires and wants of their students. Small wonder, then, that we have bred anti-eggheads in our schools — the very places where the intellect and the intellectuals should be safe from mob-ism.

If we have no vision of greatness, no regard for excellence, and place no value upon the quest for truth, we shall never reverence much more than ourselves, and our own petty self-seeking. Teachers, of course, are never fully in possession of the truth. But they do represent, in the midst of an acquisitive society, the values embodied in the search for truth, and a way of life dedicated to imparting to others, not merely receiving and getting for themselves.

All good teachers wish to be questioned, doubted, and challenged. But good answers can come only when good questions have been put, a question that is not based upon a question, but upon a desire to prove that the student is a co-equal, is not a challenge; it is a conspiracy to reduce learning to the level of student satisfactions.

Presidential Losers Arrested

SAIGON (UPI) — Police Friday arrested two defeated civilian presidential candidates on their way to the national assembly to fight for the invalidation of voting that elected Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu president. (See also Pages 3, 5.)

The two men were runner-up Truong Dinh Dzu and Vu Hong Khanh.

Khanh was released a short time later, but Dzu was held. Earlier this month Dzu was sentenced to nine months in prison and fined about $10,000 on charges of writing bad cheques and sending money out of the country illegally to a bank account in San Francisco.

Coup Trio Shot

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia has executed the first batch of officers who led an attempted Communist coup, almost exactly two years after the upheaval which plunged the nation into a bloodbath, it was learned Thursday.

Lt-Col. Untung, former battalion commander in deposed president Sukarno's palace guard, was executed by firing squad Wednesday in a military prison near the West Java capital of Bandung, informed sources said. He was accused of setting off the uprising.

TWO OTHERS

Two other officers also shot were former air force Maj. Sujono and former Lieut. Nardimo Hadisuwignjo.

The three were sentenced to death by a special military court in 1966.

Untung was the man who sent out raiding parties with the mission of kidnapping six top generals on Oct. 1, 1965, the morning of the coup attempt.

FOUND DEAD

The generals, now regarded as martyrs, were found dead at the foot of an abandoned well near Halim air base, just outside Jakarta.

Public outrage over their killing spurred Suharto and other military leaders into immediate action to crush the coup and wipe out the Indonesian Communist party.

It led to the army takeover in 1966 and Sukarno's final downfall early this year.

Holding grandchild, Mrs. Timbrell pleads with policeman

Tears and Punches Mark Foster Move

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — A wild melee of screaming, punching and sobbing broke out Thursday when police arrived to retrieve two little girls from Mrs. Arthur Timbrell, their foster mother.

Amid the uproar on a quiet residential street that startled onlookers and neighbors, the children, Valerie, 3, and Peggy, 5, were taken away to new foster homes. Mrs. Timbrell was later charged with abduction and released on her own recognizance to appear Tuesday in magistrate's court.

Police Chief Arthur Woods of Preston and his men, as well as officials of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society, were pummeled by the angry Timbrell family.

Ruth Connolly, a psychologist, was grabbed by the hair and thrown to the ground. J. W. Donachie, assistant director of the Galt branch of the society, had his glasses ripped off his face and was punched, kicked and scratched.

But nobody was hurt seriously.

Wayne Timbrell, the 21-year-old son, had to be forcibly subdued by three policemen after a shouting match between him and the officers became a shoving match. Handcuffed and hauled away in a police cruiser, he was later released.

Mrs. Timbrell, 43, a mother of nine, has refused since August to return the two little sisters after the society announced it had found separate homes for them. She vowed to go to jail rather than let the children go.

Police and society officials arrived at the Timbrell home about 2 p.m. armed with a warrant. Chief Woods read the warrant to Mrs. Timbrell on her front door, authorizing a search "by force if necessary." But the mother refused to unlock the door.

They left without trying to enforce the warrant.

A short time later, Chief Woods arrived with a warrant for Mrs. Timbrell's arrest. As a chorus of cries and wails erupted from the family members, Mrs. Timbrell put on her coat, and said she would have to take the children with her.

Mrs. Timbrell and the children climbed into the police car without a struggle, but shouting all the time. "You can't take our sisters away from us."

When Mrs. Connolly appeared at the car to remove Valerie, the Timbrells jumped out and the melee broke out.

'What Price Equalization'

Quebec Owes Clarification

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Quebec owes the rest of Canada an early indication of whether it intends to remain in Confederation, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Thursday.

"The leaders of Quebec should let us have some indication soon on where the people of Quebec stand on this," Kiernan said. "Certainly the rest of Canada should not be expected to subsidize the nation's disintegration."

He added: "In other words we (the rest of Canada) are providing hundreds of millions of dollars annually in equalization payments. We would like to be confident that it is in a good cause. That's my personal opinion."

Kiernan

Kiernan said in an interview he was confused by the present situation in Quebec. "But I would like to believe that it is a temper in a hotpot, and that we can reserve the right to argue vigorously about Confederation, to strengthen it and to keep it."

Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark said he was severely criticized three years ago for suggesting that policies of the Pearson Liberal government were leading to the breakup of Confederation.

"What I said at the time seems to be borne out — I have not seen any change in federal policy in the interval," said Loffmark.

Minister Without Portfolio

Tide Reaching Canada: Loffmark

Climbing Interest Will Rise Higher

Prospective home-buyers in Canada haven't seen the last of climbing interest rates on National Housing Act loans, Industrial Development Minister Loffmark said Thursday.

"It's going to get worse," Mr. Loffmark said. "If you think 8 per cent is bad, wait until it gets to 9 per cent."

"I say that because Canada and the U.S. have been an island of low interest rates in a great ocean of high-cost money, and this tide of world high interest rates is beginning to rise in North America. We are only following the world trend."

DEFICIT FINANCING

However, Mr. Loffmark added, high interest rates are also a secondary reflection of deficit financing.

Unless the provinces, and even more the federal government, are prepared to control borrowing as a curb on inflation, the minister said, legal limits on borrowing should be established.

Meanwhile, Opposition Leader Strachan issued a statement saying the new interest rate boost on NHA loans to 8 1/2 per cent would aggravate a national housing problem that is reaching crisis proportions.

'NO PROUD LANE'

"We have known for some years," he said, "that the NHA was not meeting the housing needs of our people. NHA standards have been deteriorating and the NHA label is no longer the proud label of a well-built house."

"Now its financial charges put it right out of the picture, and this calls for some completely new scheme of government participation in the housing field. But there are aspects of this increase in interest rates that go far beyond housing."

This increase means the Liberal government is accepting inflation as a way of life. "Inflation will destroy the worth of the savings of our senior citizens and rob the workers of their pay cheques."

Radiologists Open Clinics

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec radiologists Thursday re-opened their private offices and clinics, closed since Sept. 20, to give them more time to staff a radiology emergency service for hospitals.

A note of optimism in the seven-week dispute between the radiologists and the government is an offer from the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons to try to seek mediators acceptable to both sides.

TORY PINS TORIES

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP pinned his former government to the wall Thursday night with a verbal javelin aimed at the Liberals during a Commons debate on housing.

Howard Gratfield (PC-Brome Missisquoi) said the government is engaged in research that should have been done five years ago.

Liberals, who have had few bright moments in the debate, chuckled. It then dawned on Gratfield that a Conservative government was in office in 1962.

It wasn't the only farcical moment in the debate.

Unrestrained laughter greeted Labor Minister Nicholson's assertion that housing starts are running ahead of requirements.

The opposition replied that any MP who has spent any time in his riding knows there are serious shortages.

Nicholson was accused by Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Donairh) of spending all his time in his office, and Gratfield of travelling all over the country.

Montreal Students Jeer Cong Visitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Vietnamese who say they are members of the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam were widely booed, hissed and hooted on Thursday by an audience of about 750 Sir George Williams University students.

Frequently interrupted by shouts and vehement insults, Ly Van Sau denounced what he called American destruction of the small Asian nation and spoke of American atrocities he said were committed in Vietnam.

The Vietnamese said they belong to a student union of the NLF.

The Sir George Williams students loudly booed and flung insults at the Vietnamese during the entire speech. Some students had an effigy, a black pyjama-clad dummy that had a cardboard head painted with a red hammer and sickle.

Sir George is an English-language university.

Sau, Mrs. Nguyen Ngoc Eung and Le Mai arrived in Montreal Wednesday for a two-week tour of Quebec during which they will talk to students about the war. The visit is sponsored by l'Union general des etudiants du Quebec.

speech punctuated by student In an emotion-charged speech punctuated by student cries of "You filthy pig" and "Kill a Commie," Sau spoke of the long, unhappy history of Vietnam and said the Vietnamese people have been struggling for 100 years to push invaders from their land.

One student frantically waved an American flag as another screamed "America's always right" and "All the way with LBJ."

Housing Starts Tumble

Nicholson Sees Inflow of Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Allowing private lenders to charge the maximum NHA interest rate of 8 1/2 per cent should assure a substantial upswing of funds for housing, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday.

"Make no mistake, the new interest rate is a realistic one," he said, defending the increase he announced Wednesday night. It will come into effect Sunday. The present NHA rate is 7 1/2 per cent. (See also Page 8)

HEAVY PRESSURE

"We have been under heavy pressure for the last year to free the rate entirely," the labor minister said at the outset of a housing debate forced by the opposition.

Vehicle for the debate is the departmental spending estimates under Nicholson's responsibility, including those of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

CMHC reported earlier Thursday the rate of new housing construction in August fell on a seasonally-adjusted annual basis to 146,300 from the July rate of 151,000.

U.S. Denies Asking About Viet Guests

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States embassy spokesman said here Thursday his government has not made any inquiries about the visit to Montreal of three visitors from South Vietnam.

He said information about the three members of the National Liberation Front had been volunteered by the Canadian government.

Questions about the three men popped up in the Commons Thursday when Conservative House Leader Michael Starr asked Prime Minister Pearson whether the U.S. government asked Canada for information on them.

Pearson, who referred to the visitors as "so-called students," said:

"Subject to further examination, I think we received

The Economic Council of Canada has said 180,000 new starts are needed each year, rising to 200,000 by 1970, to catch up and meet new needs.

Nicholson's 35-minute speech was met at one point by unrestrained laughter as he said starts this year will exceed the economic council's figure.

WON'T HAPPEN

He said new starts in 1967 will exceed 150,000 and the council had said 140,000 would take care of new family growth. It was talking about replacement of old housing for the balance, he said.

Failure to meet the council's target for the balance of the 1960s would put the country in "a difficult position" and he assured MPs the government had no intention of allowing this to happen.

He expected a federal-provincial conference on housing early in 1968 or sooner and said one should have been held this fall but three provincial elections made it impossible.

Nicholson noted the council suggestion that steps be taken to free housing construction

U.S. Denies Asking About Viet Guests

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States embassy spokesman said here Thursday his government has not made any inquiries about the visit to Montreal of three visitors from South Vietnam.

Questions about the three men popped up in the Commons Thursday when Conservative House Leader Michael Starr asked Prime Minister Pearson whether the U.S. government asked Canada for information on them.

Pearson, who referred to the visitors as "so-called students," said:

"Subject to further examination, I think we received a query from the U.S. government as to any information that we may have about the nature and purpose of this visit."

"But I would like to look into the nature of the query, if any."

Pearson said the trio travelled on valid North Vietnamese passports, which are honored by Canada just as Canadian passports are honored by the North Vietnamese government.

He said the government does not know the purpose of the visit but it did not seem "possible or desirable" to refuse visas under the circumstances.

Pearson added that he used the expression "so-called students" because one was reported to be 40 "and that seems a little old to go to university."

'Nurse Brief Propaganda'

A spokesman for the provincial government Thursday attacked B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association for resorting to propaganda and misuse of statistics in seeking wage increases and fringe benefits.

R. D. Higgins, appearing for the Civil Service Commission, told a fact-finding panel the approach used by the nurses' group through the hearings was incompatible with the professional status it seeks.

CSC POLICY

The nurses refused to accept the CSC policy of comparability with registered nurses and instead were using wages of manual laborers for comparison, said Mr. Higgins.

They also, he added, either had a badly disorganized submission or subscribed to the propagandist belief "that if people are told something often enough he or she will believe it."

IMPROPER USE

Mr. Higgins charged the submission was based on improper use of published statistics and said he would cite "notable misuse and abuse" in this area during detailed rebuttal of the 61 exhibits submitted by the nurses.

Dwight Wenham, executive secretary of the B.C. Psychiatric Nurses Association, said the nurses could not accept the principle of comparability with registered nurses, because RN groups hadn't used their bargaining power properly.

FRINGE BENEFITS

He said salaries for both psychiatric nurses and registered nurses should be in the middle-upper range of technical and skilled tradesmen. Both groups of nurses were equally badly paid, the panel was told.

Mr. Wenham also argued that comparability with registered nurses meant more than salary. It should also include fringe benefits, where government employees generally lagged, and the full rights of collective bargaining.

EFFORT, SKILL

Until such time as this goal was achieved, Mr. Wenham said, psychiatric nurses had no other choice than to demand salaries "in accordance with weight of responsibility, effort and skill required in the performance of duties."

Mr. Higgins said the Civil Service Commission rejected any suggestion that psychiatric nurses should have higher pay than RNs because it would create "an untenable situation."

FACT 'IGNORED'

An obvious misuse of statistics cited by Mr. Higgins was the exhibit intended by nurses to show that their salary did not meet average spending in the Vancouver area. He added that the survey quoted was based upon 1.36 wage-earners per family, a fact which the nurses ignored.

The nurses also used comparative wage figures at Vancouver General Hospital which were part of a contract which was only signed Aug. 2, 1967, long after negotiations with the commission commenced, he said.

READY IN TIME

Rebuttal by both sides Thursday wound up three days of hearings by a fact-finding panel headed by Dr. Gordon Blott of Nanaimo. The panel's findings will be binding on both sides.

Insurance Changes Indicated

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday he hopes amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act can be introduced at an early date but declined to say whether coverage will be extended to registered nurses.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) pressed unsuccessfully for a reply on coverage of nurses who now are excluded and generally want to retain that status.

Eldon Woolliams (PC—Bow River) asked whether the government had abandoned the idea of raising maximum benefits to $65 weekly from $36. Nicholson replied hotly that the government never had such an idea in the first place. This arose from "reckless statements" such as those of Woolliams.

Right to Interfere Tested, Lost In Police Court

TORONTO (CP)—John Napierkowski, 27, charged with assaulting a police officer, was fined $25 Wednesday and lectured on his need to respect authority after he told Magistrate R. C. Taylor:

• That he tried to stop three or four policemen from beating a teenager;

• That a policeman stomped on his toe;

• That he was cured as a foreigner by a policeman.

A transcript of the dialogue between the magistrate and the accused was published in full by The Globe and Mail.

The Crown accused Napierkowski of grabbing Constable Robert Copeland while other officers escorted to a patrol car two persons arrested for fighting in the street.

Napierkowski said that wasn't the way it happened.

"... There were about three or four police officers beating up — I mean literally beating up — a young lad about 16 to 18 ..."

"Have you any right to interfere with the actions of a police officer?" asked the magistrate.

"Not necessarily ..."

"Not necessarily period," the magistrate said. "You have no right to interfere with a police officer in the execution of his duties. If he is doing something wrong there are other tribunals that will put it right. It's not for you."

Napierkowski said he asked an officer to stop the beating. "Why? What right did you have to ask him anything?"

"I saw a young lad getting beaten up."

"That's none of your business, is it?"

"I felt it was, just by human nature."

"Your business is not to interfere with the business of a police officer."

Napierkowski said he wasn't trying to interfere with anyone. "You shouldn't have said a word and you shouldn't have touched anyone," said Magistrate Taylor.

"Your Honor, he asked me who I was ..."

"Of course, because you were interfering with what he was trying to do."

"Then he stepped on my toe, slammed his foot on my toe."

"You shouldn't have been that close to him, you should have kept away from him."

Napierkowski said the officer used an obscenity in calling him a foreigner and "this riled me up, since I am a foreigner, or ..."

"It's none of your business whatsoever."

"I just couldn't appreciate a police officer just beating, abusing a human body the way he was, and there was four on one. Your Honor, I just couldn't appreciate it and I couldn't help it."

"I'm sorry I am guilty, technically guilty. However, by human nature I don't feel I am because I'd probably do it again."

Cepeda, Not Giants, Put Cards in Series

By JIM MURRAY

Any kid in the country who collects bubblegum cards could have told the Giants' Chub Feeney he was making a mistake. You don't get one Cepeda for one Sadecki. You have to throw in at least a complete infield and leave the gum on it.

When Chub sprang the deal on a visiting newsmen, he asked, "What would you do if the Cardinals offered Sadecki for Cepeda?" the writer answered, "Call the police."

Chub might have done better if he advertised in the better journals of commerce "for sale or trade: one National League pennant with or without world championship attached. Does not eat much, salary negligible, all unreasonable offers considered."

Ordinarily, a baseball trade is a simple exchange of two disappointments in the hopes a change of environment will inspire one or both of them to mediocrity, but Chub Feeney was putting on the market a prize bull who had knocked in 767 runs, had poled 226 home runs and had a lifetime average of .308. One year, he hit for 355 total bases and he out-hit, out-homered and out-ran-batted-in more storied teammate, Willie Mays. He had stolen as many as 23 bases in a season.

You might think from the foregoing that Chub Feeney had caught Orlando Manuel Cepeda poisoning the San Francisco water supply, or selling Mare Island navy yard pictures to the communists, or pulling the wings off birds as a hobby, but Orlando's worst fault was playing left field. He didn't even have dandruff or snore.

You had to wonder what Chub would have gotten for Rogers Hornsby. Waiters?

of the strongest men ever to play the game of baseball. He swings a bat which, if it had leaves on it, you would take for a well-grown tree.

His father was to Caribbean baseball what Babe Ruth was to the American game. "Perucho" Cepeda was a man so powerful he had been known to hit baseballs so hard they couldn't even find the ravelings and so stubborn he stole back his clothes and left the hospital when he had only three days to live. He died of cirrhosis of the liver but his son says it was not from alcohol, which he did not drink, but from polluted water at the dockyards where he worked — and there may be a lesson in these some place.

Orlando Cepeda has sometimes seemed to have less a career than a long-term tantrum. He was tackled by Mays once as he seemed to be manoeuvring himself into homicide position over Danny Murtaugh and, as one writer said, when Mays and Elmo Chacon tangled in New York once, Orlando fought on the undercard against Roger Craig. And he threw a baseball into a crowd of jeerers in Puerto Rico one winter.

Cepeda is the best hitter in baseball at the moment, certifiable by averages, hits, runs-batted-in. His numerous walks indicate he will no longer try to hit anything that does not hit him first.

His career has been aggravated by a slightly bowed and turned-in right leg — not so much because of what it does to him as what it does to his managers. Stories have been released ascribing his semi-limp to everything from post-polio to a fall from a tree but "Perucho" (as his adoring followers in San Juan call him) insists it's nothing more than a residue from a cartilage operation at the age of 14. Not even when he stole 71 bases in his first four seasons in the big leagues would the stories die. Another cartilage operation in 1965 gave the Giants a chance to say "see," and gave them a chance to put Willie McCovey on first base and Orlando Cepeda in the world series.

If he doesn't win the MVP award this year, the winner should blindfold the minute he gets it. And Chub Feeney should get in touch with the Better Business Bureau, racket squad and the bunco detail the next time St. Louis comes offering left-handed pitchers for all-time sluggers.

Four-Way Tie For Lead In Atlanta Golf

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Late starting Miller Barber and Randy Glover struggled through the gloom of a raw and blustery day with three-under-par 69s to match shots with Don January and Charlie Sifford as a four-way tie for the lead developed Thursday in the opening round of the $115,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

The four veteran pros had a single stroke lead over five other golfers as rain and chilling winds swept the 7,043-yard Atlanta Country Club course in what was described as the roughest day on the Professional Golfers Association tour this year.

January, the 37-year-old PGA champion, paired with Sifford in an early finish and said: "This is my kind of weather."

He went one over par on the first nine of the par 36-72 layout, but finished with a flurry of birdies to end the back-9 in 32 strokes.

Sifford 44, said he is playing as well as he has in his career. His 31-putt round, going over par once but offsetting this with four birdies, included a 20-foot-er from the fringe on the 400-yard 12th hole.

Barber canned three birdies and missed only one green for his 69, and Glover finished with a flourish, getting three birdies on the final nine.

TRAILED BY ONE

A stroke back at 70 were Mason Rudolph, former amateur champ Labron Harris, Raymond Floyd, and a pair of second-year men on the PGA tour, Wayne Yates and Walter Zembra, 32-year-old former steel worker.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had 38-74.

Doug Sanders, one of the few top money players besides January to play the Atlanta tournament, scored to a 76.

The weather took its toll of several other name pros, including Frank Beard who left after a 78.

Money leaders Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Julius Boros bypassed the tournament.

Ted Gerela Gains In Scoring

Ted Gerela, British Columbia Lions soccer-type kicking specialist, moved into the top 10 in the Western Football Conference individual conference race Wednesday.

He scored five points on a field goal and two converts as Lions trounced Winnipeg Blue Bombers 17-1.

Saskatchewan's Jack Abend- schan is in first place with 59 points.

Jockeys Set Down

Two apprentice riders have been given three-day suspensions by stewards for rides which Monday brought a first at Sandown Park with disqualification of winning thoroughbreds in successive races.

Jim Gilbert, who rode Alcario in the fifth race, and Jim Arnold, up on Milord of Kent in the sixth, will start serving their time tomorrow.

Their enforced inactivity continues through the Monday and Wednesday cards.

A third rider, Charles Kron, has been suspended indefinitely for conduct which had nothing to do with riding at Sandown, where he has yet to accept a mount.

The reason given for Kron's suspension was a somewhat cryptic "misconduct on the backstretch."

Arrangements were completed Thursday for swim star Elaine Tanner, 16, to leave Vancouver for Winnipeg Oct. 7 to take up residence and begin training for the 1968 Olympics under Coach Howard Forby, former coach of the Dolphin Swim Club of Vancouver. Fairly is no coach of Winnipeg's 50-metre pool.

Bolstered Burnaby Club Next Test for O'Keefes

Burnaby Villa, a sixth-place team in the Pacific Coast Soccer League last season, will be here Saturday with only five holdovers but Victoria O'Keefes may be facing a coming PCSL power when they play their second league game.

Burnaby-manager Joe Howarth isn't at all certain of what kind of a club he has but he finds the possibilities "interesting" and is more than willing to take his chances on what is perhaps the league's most altered lineup.

Biggest reason for his cautious optimism is the presence of five newcomers brought to Canada by Vancouver Royal Canadians of the professional United Soccer League.

All are amateurs but they are really apprentice professionals. The USL season doesn't open until April and the five pros pects will be playing for Villa until then, and trying to make the kind of impression that will get them a long look from the Royal Canadians.

All are starting Saturday at Royal Athletic Park, where action gets underway at 2 p.m. Villa also has four other Old Country players. Scotsman Les Way is listed to start at inside-left and countryman Bob Hill and Englishman Ray Thrusell and Simon Oester are on the spare list.

Weather Delays World Title Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Rain forced a one-day postponement of Thursday night's scheduled world middleweight title fight at Shea Stadium between champion Nino Benvenuti of Italy and ex-champ Emilio Griffith of New York.

The 15-round match was rescheduled for tonight at 10 p.m. EDT although the weather forecast said there was an 80 per cent chance of continued rain.

If there is a second postponement the rematch will be held Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. The field must be ready for New York Jets' football opener Sunday.

Both fighters must weigh in again today at 11 a.m. At Thursday's 14-lb. morning weigh-in, Benvenuti just made the class limit of 160 pounds and Griffith came in at 155, his heaviest for a championship match.

In their first fight, April 17, Benvenuti weighed 159, Griffith 155 1/2.

They were on the ice when Seattle scored both of its goals but the forward line of Neil Clarke, Lou Jankowski and Jack Matheson came up with the winner Thursday night as Phoenix Roadrunners edged Seattle Totems, 3-2, in an exhibition game at Memorial Arena.

Clarke caught the net with a backhand shot with less than three minutes remaining after a neat passing play with his linemates.

Rollie Wilcox and Brian Smith scored the other Phoenix goals while Tom Iannone and Bill Dineen tallied for Seattle.

OPENED SCORING

After a scoreless first period, Wilcox got the first Phoenix goal after just 20 seconds of the second period from a scramble with Gord Redahl and Ron Marcotte drawing assists.

Iannone evened matters late in the period when Bernie Gould trapped an attempted Phoenix clearance and fed the puck to the goalmouth.

Smith connected on a backhand slap shot early in the third after taking Bob Kabel's pass from the corner but Dineer tied it again at 6:18 on Earl Heiskala's pass again after sloppy clearing by the Roadrunners.

FIGHTS ADD SPICE

Two fights added spice to an otherwise spotty game for the 1,500 fans.

Marty Desmarais tangled with Seattle's Larry Lund after being speared in the first period and Gerry Leonard came up swinging after being boarded by Ron Marcotte in the third. All four drew majors with Lund getting an addition two minutes for spearing Phoenix drew five of nine other minors.

Phoenix used Rick Charron, Claude Cyr and David Halme a period each in goal and all three came through well in stiff testing.

Seattle's Guyle Fielder did not play because of illness.

Weather Gets Into Act, Delays Pennant Struggle

They may have to scrape snow off the playing surfaces before the 1967 world series is completed.

The series is scheduled to start next Wednesday in the home park of whatever club wins the American League pennant, but it may be delayed by two, three, four, five or even more days.

It all depends on whether the American League will need a playoff to decide its champion. And it is possible that weather could delay things even more.

Because either the Minnesota Twins or Boston Red Sox will be eliminated in the two-game series they start tomorrow to close out their scheduled seasons, no more than three teams can be involved in a playoff.

Should it end in a three-way tie, Chicago White Sox, Detroit Tigers and either the Twins or Red Sox will open a round-robin, double-loss playoff next Monday.

It would take a minimum of four days and a maximum of five, setting the series start back to the following Sunday or Monday.

A two-team tie would be decided in a best-of-three playoff starting Monday, delaying the series to next Friday or Saturday.

Then there is the chance that weather could play a hand in delaying things. That became a possibility yesterday when the Tigers were rained out of their scheduled game against California Angels.

FOUR GAMES TO PLAY

That leaves only three days for the Tigers and California Angels to complete their season-ending four-game series.

They are scheduled for a doubleheader today and single games tomorrow and Saturday; Chicago White Sox are booked for single games today, tomorrow and Sunday against Washington Senators and the Twins.

The tight schedule leaves the possibility that rain in either Chicago, Detroit or Boston could prevent the completion of the league season on Sunday.

It being unlikely that a pennant decision would be made unless each of the contenders has played their 162 scheduled games, that would mean an extension of the season. And that could delay the start of any playoff.

SCHEDULED TO START

Joe Sparna (15-9) and Earl Wilson (22-11) are scheduled to start for the Tigers today as they try to move into a first-place tie with the Twins.

The White Sox have named Tommy John (10-11) to start today.

There are all kinds of possibilities in the remaining schedule.

The Red Sox must beat the Twins twice to have any hope, being one game out on the losing side at the moment.

If that happens, the Tigers could win it by making a four-game sweep over the Angels. If the Tigers lose once and the White Sox sweep, it would then be a three-way tie.

AND THEN AGAIN . . .

If Boston and Minnesota split, the Tigers and White Sox remain in the same position as in the Boston sweep. But if the Twins sweep, only the Tigers, who would also have to have a sweep, would have a chance.

Only the pitcher-rich White Sox have their rotation set for the remaining games. They plan on starting Gary Peters (16-10) tomorrow and finish with Joel Horlen (19-7) on Sunday.

The Tigers were set back by last night's rainout. They plan to use Mickey Lolich (13-13) tomorrow but Sunday's choice is unknown. They probably would have started Sparna, who was scheduled to go last night, with the rainout leaves Sparna with only one day between games.

Explosive College Issue

Enemies Unite, Friends Torn Apart

The fight for a regional college has united foes and brought friends to opposite sides of the battle.

Nowhere is this better demonstrated than in the position of executives of the International Woodworkers of America.

The IWA, a guiding force in the lives of much of the Island's population, includes sharp division between those for and those against the college.

The vote will be held on Saturday.

The Duncan local of the IWA, which includes the district from Port Renfrew to Qualicum, has gone on record as favoring the college.

Still Finance

But two major spokesmen for the Port Alberni local of the union have attacked the proposal, and urged residents to vote against it because of the way it is financed.

Port Alberni local president Walter Allen and business agent John Squire have both spoken against the college.

Mr. Squire is a former NDP MLA for the Alberni.

New Democrats Tom Barnett, MP for Comox-Alberni, and Colin Cameron, MP for Nanaimo, are also split. Mr. Barnett is against, Mr. Cameron is supporting the college. John Squire rejected the inference that those opposing the plebiscite were not honest and open in their opinions.

"There is nothing dishonorable about our position, nothing has been done with ulterior motives in mind," he asserted. Indeed opposition has come most strongly from highly responsible bodies, from the city councils of Duncan and Alberni, from the New Democratic Party convention, and most recently and overwhelmingly from the UBCM members at their convention in Prince George.

"Certainly they can't call these irresponsible bodies," he said.

Serves People

Ed Linder, financial secretary of the Duncan local, said Thursday "The executive board is urging its membership to vote yes on Saturday."

He stated "The vote Saturday is not a money bylaw vote."

"It is a plebiscite to ascertain the voters' wishes on the question of a regional college, and we feel the answer should be a strong yes."

Mr. Linder said a good description of a regional college is this, it is designed to serve the needs of all the residents of the region.

"Could we say that about a university?" he asked. "Or a vocational school? A language school?"

"A regional college serves high school graduates, non-graduates over 18 years of age seeking further education, and also those who wish to broaden their knowledge in technical, vocational or academic areas."

Specific Need

He said a man over 70 attends the regional college in Castlegar — happy and accepted as a fellow student by the younger scholars there.

An area surrounding a regional college usually has some specific needs, industrially or otherwise, for a special course. "A regional college is designed to do that, and provide for upgrading courses as well," Mr. Linder said.

Mr. Squire said a meeting in the Alberni "We cannot afford a proposition where colleges are built on a regional basis."

'Discriminatory'

"Then only high income areas can afford them, and those in lower income areas are denied the same right."

Mr. Squire said the whole idea is discriminatory.

Mr. Linder in Duncan said "the origin of the word educate is interesting. I understand it means to lead, draw, and bring out. With all due respect to our present hard-working educational institutions, the present educational structure, program and facilities, has not completely succeeded in doing that." For an example he used the study of languages.

Fluent?

"How many high school graduates do you know who have studied another language, who can travel to the country where the language is spoken, and converse with any fluency?"

"If not, can we say that facet of their education has really drawn out their latent possibilities?"

Walter Allen said "to suggest that Saturday's vote is of little consequence and that the people are going to get another chance, is false."

Saturday's vote puts the school district in or out of the college district.

"The next vote is whether you pay up or not. The Alberni Valley could vote unanimously against it the second time, and still be overwhelmed by the vote in other areas, he told the listeners."

Registering

"Education should be for all men with the costs shared equally by all men."

"The department of education has not said a college is required. The move was instituted by Nanaimo," he contended. "This goes further than the education of the children. The cash register has a real bearing on the college in the Nanaimo area."

Mr. Linder said everyone receives an education, either in or out of school.

A young man working in a filling station, tinkering with tires, carburetors, spark plugs, on his own receives a little technical education by the hit and miss method.

More Concrete

"But a technical school will do it much better," he said.

An immigrant learning to talk the country's language from hearing his fellow workers speak, educates himself in the language.

"But a school will teach it to him far better," said Mr. Linder.

"The point here is that our educational facilities must be designed so as to sympathetically and intelligently draw out to the fullest degree the talents the student possesses," he stated.

Takes Two

Mr. Linder continued, "With all due respect to universities, many cannot go there. A university program is somewhat rigid."

"A student must usually leave home to attend. Getting a degree takes time. A university is necessary, but does not do the whole educational job."

"With a regional college located in the area, most students can commute. Those wishing to proceed to university can get the first two years in at the regional college."

Mr. Linder said a regional college provides a flexibility in the choice and length of courses, not found in other seats of learning.

"A regional college provides wise counselling that can steer the young student into the right vocation, and give it to him right near home," he stated.

He added "We must admit we live in a very flexible fast-changing world, and a flexible, adaptable seat of learning near home should be a step in the right direction."

High School Students Get Facts

LAKE COWICHAN — Members of the regional college advisory committee from Lake Cowichan have spoken to 14 clubs and organizations in the area during the past three weeks.

Chairman of the Lake Cowichan representatives, Arnie Irwin, of Honeymoon Bay, said "We have talked about the proposed college to more than 400 individuals adults in the district, and we have met with a great deal of enthusiasm."

Thursday, we also explained the advantages of the college and proposed courses to about 550 students and 20 teachers at Lake Cowichan Secondary School."

For Students

Mr. Irwin stated "We feel the students should know the benefits of the proposed college. It will be the students, even more than the adults who will be taking advantage of the college facilities."

Lake Cowichan School Board Chairman Don Hammond said "The advisory committee has made itself available to every organization in the district."

Big Backing

Approval of the regional college plebiscite has been given by village council, chamber of commerce, PTA's, Children's Play Group, Teachers' Association, United Church Women, Legion, Royal Purple, Elks Club, Kinsmen, Kiwanis, Klippers and IOOE.

A member of the advisory committee, Yvonne Green of Lake Cowichan said Thursday "In considering how to vote on Saturday, the voters should take into account that students have many varied abilities."

Other Interests

"Many secondary school graduates who are not inclined toward bookish and theoretical studies have other important abilities."

She said education authorities have frequently drawn attention to the number of very able secondary school graduates who do not choose to attend university.

"Some of these young people display abilities and talents to a degree that may surpass that of many university students," she said.

"For example, they may display more ability for dealing effectively with people, a very important ability in many situations."

Arts Talent

"They may possess artistic, musical and dramatic talent of an exceptionally high order."

"They may have superior ability for managing practical and community affairs, and for getting things done."

In fact they may display more sheer good sense and greater enterprise than a university seems able to install into some of its graduates."

Mrs. Green continued, "Given an opportunity to continue their education beyond secondary school, along lines that are in keeping with their special abilities and interests, some of these young people can become exceptionally competent in managing and developing some of the most important affairs in our industrial, commercial, political and community life."

Important

She concluded, "It is of the greatest importance to themselves and to the country at large that district and regional colleges give them opportunities to do so."

Other members of the advisory committee appointed by the Lake Cowichan school board are: Ann-Belle Scott, Gordon Winter, Stan Creelman, Howard Delmange and John Clark.

Flood Control Project

Council Approves Dike

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal councillors approved the first three readings of a $10,000 bylaw to authorize the construction of a dike to stop floods in the Beverly Street area.

Final reading will be given at the next meeting.

Homes in the area have experienced flooding in the past whenever the rain-swollen Soan Creek and Cowichan River overflow their banks.

Reeve Donald Morton said work on the dike is expected to start immediately.

Coun. John Cannon stated, "I do not see why this project cannot be completed this winter. If the work is not started now the project will have to be left until next year."

The estimated cost of the $10,000 dike system will be shared equally between the municipality and residents in the area.

The council's public works committee will meet with representatives of the Cowichan

School Board, Monday morning to discuss mutual projects and problems.

Coun. Margaret Robertson told council she had received complaints from parents about the narrowness of Lakes Road.

The road will be used by school children when the new Roome Road School is completed.

Reeve Morton stated "If the school board does not give us warning when they are going to build a school, we have a big problem."

In this case, with the narrowness of the road, we might have to tile two miles of ditch."

Coun. George Whitaker suggested the school board could put a bus on the route until a walkway can be put in.

He said "The problem cannot be ironed out this year. It is not in our budget."

Coun. Robertson suggested there should be a closer liaison between the North Cowichan Council and the school board about the locality of proposed schools in the district, so the council can budget for items similar to the problem on Lakes Road.

Recreation Studied

PORT ALBERNI — The solid core of dedicated people to whom recreation is a profession, a way of life and almost the breath of life, will meet Saturday.

The Vancouver Island Recreation Commission conference will be the first meeting to actually use the new community centre, and part of its time will be taken up with a guided tour of the new facilities, early in the afternoon.

Registration will take place starting at 9 a.m. after which the visitors will be welcomed by Al Robinson, chairman of the Alberni Valley Parks and Recreation Commission, Dr. Howard MacDermid, MLA, and Jim Pantan, director of the Community Programs Branch of the provincial government.

The morning session will be broken down into two one-hour panels.

The first, on communications, will hear Jack Morgan, director of recreation and community services in Victoria, Ron Coull, news director of Radio Station CJAV in Port Alberni and Gordon Hamer of The Daily Colonist and a radio commentator for CJVI.

From 11 to 12, a panel of five young people will discuss teenage recreation under moderator Len Ryan, assistant director of supervised recreation for Vancouver Parks and Recreation Board.

Following a smorgasbord and a tour of the new facilities in Port Alberni, five areas of discussion will proceed in the afternoon.

These include prior citizens programs, community arts programs under Dick Christie, chairman of the highly successful community arts festival in the Alberni Valley; teenage recreation under Len Ryan; communications under Jack Morgan of Victoria; planning, financing and staffing recreation facilities under Duncan Russell, Port Alberni's Recreation.

Advance ticket sale was imperative so the ball was cancelled at the last moment.

With over a year to work, machinery has begun to move, to insure the ball's success for the last Saturday of September, 1968.

There were several reasons for this year's failure, which will serve in good stead for the future.

Conceived too late for the people to prepare costumes, they now have a full year.

Already tickets are being sold, in a determined program to have a minimum of 75 tickets before publicity begins.

Those first 75 people will get in for $10.

Contributors to the ball this year have almost entirely said, "If you need any help, just call."

They are being taken at their word.

Those preparations which have already been completed, will be stored and used next September.

Regardless of this saving, the indications are that when tickets go on sale publicly, they will be in excess of $10 a couple.

Interference from Minister Blamed in Labor Dispute

PORT ALBERNI — A labor spokesman here blames Federal Minister Ray Williston for the breakdown in interior lumber workers negotiations.

Dan Connell, chairman of the district labor council, said democratic collective bargaining carried on by B.C. unions is "the best in the world."

He said the provincial government should aid and assist without interfering.

"It is a delicate business. People's emotions are involved. Any big mouth or big foot can wreck months of preparation."

"Ray Williston, by throwing his weight on the side of the employer, has completely destroyed this balance in the interior," he contended.

"The provincial government has blundered along without even a fulltime labor minister."

"The Labor Relations Board has injected into the delicate balance of the collective bargaining procedure, an officer without even the qualifications for a shop steward in one of our unions."

"Their men try hard, but they don't have the qualifications. Unlike two full-grown men battling out and a 15-year-old being appointed as conciliator."

He was replying to a speech here by Liberal Leader Ray Ferris.

Mr. Ferris had called for the setting up by the government of an industrial development council, and a fully-staffed research division to report objectively in productivity and allied matters, for use by both management and labor, to provide a starting point toward satisfactory settlement of labor disputes.

"The government should work more actively to bring labor and management together, not punitively, within a spirit of cooperation," Mr. Ferris said.

He told his audience the B.C. labor force is the most productive in Canada and industrial management the most effective.

The resulting purchasing power of the work force is what makes B.C. one of the most prosperous Canadian provinces, he added.

Mr. Connell said "They are going to have to pay money for suitable people it's not a job for an $8,000-a-year man."

He added a plea for a statistical bureau to be established by the province which would be completely impartial.

At present conciliators are fed figures by management, whose companies keep statistical records, and labor unions are loathe to accept the figures as accurate.

"Present conciliation officers have not the stature to overcome the difficulties," the labor council head said, and added "cabinet ministers should keep their noses out of this field."

Arts Ball on Again, Just One Year Late

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — The Beaux Arts Ball idea is too good to die.

This was the decision of organizers, after a post-mortem on the demise of the attempt to institute the ball, which was to be held tonight.

The morning session will be broken down into two one-hour panels.

The first, on communications, will hear Jack Morgan, director of recreation and community services in Victoria, Ron Coull, news director of Radio Station CJAV in Port Alberni and Gordon Hamer of The Daily Colonist and a radio commentator for CJVI.

From 11 to 12, a panel of five young people will discuss teenage recreation under moderator Len Ryan, assistant director of supervised recreation for Vancouver Parks and Recreation Board.

Following a smorgasbord and a tour of the new facilities in Port Alberni, five areas of discussion will proceed in the afternoon.

These include prior citizens programs, community arts programs under Dick Christie, chairman of the highly successful community arts festival in the Alberni Valley; teenage recreation under Len Ryan; communications under Jack Morgan of Victoria; planning, financing and staffing recreation facilities under Duncan Russell, Port Alberni's Recreation.

Advance ticket sale was imperative so the ball was cancelled at the last moment.

With over a year to work, machinery has begun to move, to insure the ball's success for the last Saturday of September, 1968.

There were several reasons for this year's failure, which will serve in good stead for the future.

Conceived too late for the people to prepare costumes, they now have a full year.

Already tickets are being sold, in a determined program to have a minimum of 75 tickets before publicity begins.

Those first 75 people will get in for $10.

Contributors to the ball this year have almost entirely said, "If you need any help, just call."

They are being taken at their word.

No single entry tickets will be sold.

Many people thought the costumes had to be expensive, with intricate design.

This misconception idea will be fought, with the spirit of individual imagination encouraged.

The original nucleus which formed this year's working group will continue in that capacity, and will form a Beaux Arts Ball Society.

They feel scholarships for students of the arts, based on artistic ability, regardless of considerations such as scholastic or social standing or age, is too important to be allowed to die.

The feeling is if Canadian culture is to grow, it must be encouraged within no restrictions.

The society will dissociate from alliance with any specific group, but rather encourage participation from as broad a basis as possible.

Working Capital Boosted For Video Association

CAMPBELL RIVER — Four directors have been elected for two-year terms at the 11th annual meeting of the Campbell River TV Association.

They are Geoffrey Goodship, Ron McLaren, George Moore and Ray Compton.

Chairman Bill Bradshaw, treasurer Arthur Sanberg and director E. R. Coffey have one more year to serve on the board. About 40 out of 2,450 subscribers attended the meeting.

They were told there had been an increase in working capital of $20,000 during the past year.

New connections to the cable system have averaged 30 each month.

In his annual report, Mr. Bradshaw said educational TV would soon be available on Channel 10 in schools and homes. Programs would be controlled from one school and transmitted to each school in the area on the cable.

The school board will pay association costs and any extra cable costs, he said.

Mr. Goodship is a teacher who has been active in preparing for educational TV in the district.

Presidential Losers Arrested

SAIGON (UPI) — Police Friday arrested two defeated civilian presidential candidates on their way to the national assembly to fight for the invalidation of voting that elected Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu president. (See also Pages 3, 5.)

The two men were runner-up Truong Dinh Dzu and Vu Hong Khanh. Khanh was released a short time later, but Dzu was held. Earlier this month Dzu was sentenced to nine months in prison and fined about $10,000 on charges of writing bad checks and sending money out of the country illegally to a bank account in San Francisco.

Coup Trio Shot

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia has executed the first batch of officers who led an attempted Communist coup, almost exactly two years after the upheaval which plunged the nation into a bloodbath, it was learned Thursday.

LT-Col. Untung, former battalion commander in deposed President Sukarno's palace guard, was executed by firing squad Wednesday in a military prison near the West Java capital of Bandung, informed sources said. He was accused of setting off the uprising.

TWO OTHERS

Two other officers also shot were former air force Maj. Supono and former Lt. Ngalim Hadisuwignjo.

The three were sentenced to death by a special military court in 1966.

Untung was the man who sent out raiding parties with the mission of kidnapping six top generals on Oct. 1, 1965, the morning of the coup attempt.

FOUND DEAD

The generals, now regarded as martyrs, were found dead at the foot of an abandoned well near Halim air base, just outside Jakarta.

Public outrage over their killing spurred Suharto and other military leaders into immediate action to crush the coup and wipe out the Indonesian Communist party.

It led to the army takeover in 1966 and Sukarno's final downfall early this year.

Holding grandchild, Mrs. Timbrell pleads with policeman

Tears and Punches Mark Foster Move

PRESTON, Ont. (CP) — A wild melee of screaming, punching and sobbing broke out Thursday when police arrived to retrieve two little girls from Mrs. Arthur Timbrell, their foster mother.

Amid the uproar on a quiet residential street that startled onlookers and neighbors, the children, Valerie, 3, and Peggy, 5, were taken away to new foster homes, Mrs. Timbrell was later charged with abduction and released on her own recognizance to appear Tuesday in magistrate's court.

Police Chief Arthur Woods of Preston and his men, as well as officials of the Waterloo County Children's Aid Society, were pummeled by the angry Timbrell family.

Ruth Connolly, a psychologist, was grabbed by the hair and thrown to the ground.

J. W. Donachie, assistant director of the Galt branch of the society, had his glasses ripped off his face and was punched, kicked and scratched.

But nobody was hurt seriously.

Wayne Timbrell, the 21-year-old son, had to be forcibly subdued by three policemen after a shouting match between him and the officers became a shoving match. Handcuffed and hauled away in a police cruiser, he was later released.

Mrs. Timbrell, 43, a mother of nine, has refused since August to return the two little girls after the society announced it had found separate homes for them. She vowed to go to jail rather than let the children go.

Police and society officials arrived at the Timbrell home about 2 p.m., armed with a warrant. Chief Woods read the warrant to Mrs. Timbrell at her front door, authorizing a search "by force if necessary." But the mother refused to unlock the door.

They left without trying to enforce the warrant.

A short time later, Chief Woods arrived with a warrant for Mrs. Timbrell's arrest. As a chorus of cries and wails erupted from the family members, Mrs. Timbrell put on her coat, and said she would have to take the children with her.

Mrs. Timbrell and the children climbed into the police car without a struggle, but shouting all the time: "You can't take our sisters away from us."

When Mrs. Connolly appeared at the car to remove Valerie, the Timbrells jumped out and the melee broke out.

'What Price Equalization'

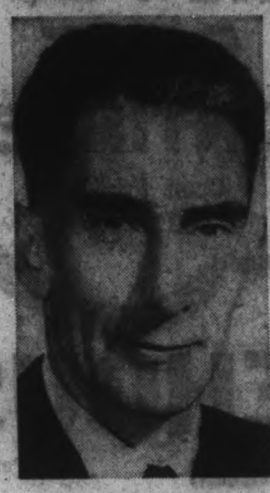

Quebec Owes Clarification

By IAN STREET

Quebec owes the rest of Canada an early indication of whether it intends to remain in Confederation, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Thursday.

"The leaders of Quebec should let us have some indication soon on where the people of Quebec stand on this," Kiernan said. "Certainly the rest of Canada should not be expected to subsidize the nation's disintegration."

He added: "In other words we (the rest of Canada) are providing hundreds of millions of dollars annually in equalization payments. We would like to be confident that it is in a good cause. That's my personal opinion."

Kiernan

Kiernan said in an interview he was confused by the present situation in Quebec. "But I would like to believe that it is a tempest in a teapot, and that we can reserve the right to argue vigorously about Confederation, to strengthen it and to keep it."

Trade Minister Ralph Lofmark said the west severely criticized three years ago for suggesting that policies of the Pearson Liberal government were leading to the breakup of Confederation.

"What I said at the time seems to be borne out — I have not seen any change in federal policy in the interval," said Lofmark.

Minister Without Portfolio

Radiologists Open Clinics

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec radiologists Thursday re-opened their private offices and clinics, closed since Sept. 29, to give them more time to staff a radiology emergency service for hospitals.

A note of optimism in the seven-week dispute between the radiologists and the government is an offer from the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons to try to seek mediators acceptable to both sides.

Sir George said they belong to a student union of the NLF.

The Sir George Williams students loudly booed and flung insults at the Vietnamese during the entire speech. Some students had an effigy, a black pyjama-clad dummy that had a cardboard head painted with a red hammer and sickle.

Sau, Mrs. Nguyen Ngoc Eung and Le Mai arrived in Montreal Wednesday for a two-week tour of Quebec during which they will talk to students about the war. The visit is sponsored by l'Union generale des etudiants du Quebec.

"I don't know what the answers are, but I hope Mr. Pearson has them," she said. "The best we can do here is say we are interested in a completely united Canada. In B.C. we should be just as concerned and strong in our views to keep it a united Canada as if they were our next-door neighbors."

Agriculture Minister Frank Rutherford said he saw the problem as one Quebecers must solve among themselves after being given the assurance other Canadians don't want them out of Confederation.

In an emotion-charged speech punctuated by student cries of "You filthy pig" and "Kill a Commie," Sau spoke of the long, unhappy history of Vietnam and said the Vietnamese people have been struggling for 100 years to push invaders from their land.

One student frantically waved an American flag as another screamed "America's always right" and "All the way with LBJ."

TORY PINS TORIES

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP planned his former government to the wall Thursday night with a verbal javelin aimed at the Liberals during a Commons debate on housing.

Howard Gratley (PC-Brome, Missisquoi) said the government is engaged in research that should have been done five years ago.

Liberals, who have had few bright moments in the debate, chuckled. It then dawned on Gratley that a Conservative government was in office in 1965.

It wasn't the only farcical moment in the debate.

Unrestrained laughter greeted Labor Minister Nicholson's assertion that housing starts are running ahead of requirements.

The opposition replied that any MP who has spent any time in his riding knows there are serious shortages.

Nicholson was accused by Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) of spending all his time in his office, and Gratley of travelling all over the country.

Housing Starts Tumble

Nicholson Sees Inflow of Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Allowing private lenders to charge the maximum NHA interest rate of 8 1/2 per cent should assure a substantial upswing of funds for housing, Labor Minister Nicholson told the Commons Thursday.

"Make no mistake, the new interest rate is a realistic one," he said, defending the increase he announced Wednesday night.

It will come into effect Sunday. The present NHA rate is 7 1/2 per cent. (See also Page 8)

HEAVY PRESSURE

"We have been under heavy pressure for the last year to free the rate entirely," the labor minister said at the outset of a housing debate forced by the opposition.

Vehicle for the debate is the departmental spending estimates under Nicholson's responsibility, including those of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

CMHC reported earlier Thursday the rate of new housing construction in August fell on a seasonally-adjusted annual basis to 146,300 from the July rate of 151,000.

The Economic Council of Canada has said 180,000 new starts are needed each year, rising to 200,000 by 1970, to catch up and meet new needs.

Nicholson's 35-minute speech was met at one point by unrestrained laughter as he said starts this year will exceed the economic council's figure.

WONT HAPPEN

He said new starts in 1967 will exceed 150,000 and the council had said 140,000 would take care of new family growth. It was talking about replacement of old housing for the balance, he said.

Failure to meet the council's target for the balance of the 1960s would put the country in "a difficult position," he assured MPs the government had no intention of allowing this to happen.

He expected a federal-provincial conference on housing early in 1968 or sooner and said one should have held this fall but three provincial elections made it impossible.

Nicholson noted, the council suggestion that steps be taken to free housing construction

Montreal Students Jeer Cong Visitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Vietnamese who say they are members of the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam were widely booed, hissed and hooted on Thursday by an audience of about 750 Sir George Williams University students.

Frequently interrupted by shouts and vehement insults, Jay Van Sau denounced what he called American destruction of the small Asian nation and spoke of American atrocities he said were committed in Vietnam.

The Vietnamese said they belong to a student union of the NLF.

The Sir George Williams students loudly booed and flung insults at the Vietnamese during the entire speech. Some students had an effigy, a black pyjama-clad dummy that had a cardboard head painted with a red hammer and sickle.

One student frantically waved an American flag as another screamed "America's always right" and "All the way with LBJ."

Patiently waiting until the boom would fade, Sau was near tears and at one point his voice quavered. He displayed part of a "lazy dog" or fragmentation bomb, and said Vietnamese children were killed and maimed by napalm.

"We only want peace and the right to determine our own fate and our own country," said Sau as he was drowned out by boos and hisses.

Some of the students cheered in support of the Vietnamese, however, and one of them held up a small red book of quotations from Mao Tse-tung.

Reminding the audience of the bloody defeat of the French at Dien Bien Phu in 1954, Sau said he was confident the Americans would be defeated.

The three Vietnamese declined to talk to reporters following the tumultuous meeting. Outside the hall Sau shook his head slightly, smiled and said: "After all, Jesus Christ was in a minority too."

Pearson said the trio travelled on valid North Vietnamese passports, which are honored by Canada just as Canadian passports are honored by the North Vietnamese government.

He said the government does not know the purpose of the visit but it did not seem "possible or desirable" to refuse visas under the circumstances.

Pearson added that he used the expression "so-called students" because one was reported to be 40 "and that seems a little old to go to university."
